WRIGLEY FIELD, CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Scenes reminiscent of the golden era days of baseball were reenacted today as a wild, joyous mob of fans stormed the gates of Wrigley Field to watch the mighty New York Yankees try to cool off Gabby Hartnett's hot Chicago Cubs in the opener of the 1938 World Series.

Though it was chilly, cloudy and windy — better football weather than baseball—the exultant fans, many of whom stayed in line all night, filled the bleachers 20 minutes after the gates opened, four and a half hours before game time.

6,500 Fans Pack Bleachers

Within 40 minutes the bleachers were packed with 6,500 fans who seized every available space from the aisles to the tilted walls. The weather grew slightly warmer by the hour.

There wasn't any doubt but that the park would be jammed to its capacity by game time, insuring an attendance of 44,466 fans and a gate of $234,804.90. Ticket windows were closed for all but those wishing to risk $3.30 for standing room. Scalpers asked and received as high as $25 for regulation $5.50 grandstand tickets.

Many sleepy eyed fans, who had stood in line for two days, surrendered their spots for $10. "Happy" Felsch of Milwaukee, who says he's a distant relative of the old White Sox star, was the first fan into the park, earning the honor by camping here since last Wednesday.

Landis Inspects Field

Nothing new emanated from the rival camps of the Cubs and Yankees and no one questioned but what big Red Ruffing would go to the post for the Yankees, opposed by Gen. Bill Lee.

Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, was up early and banging at the gates before they were opened.

"You'll have to go through the press gate," shouted a gate attendant. The old judge fumed and sputtered and was just about to stalk off when someone recognized him and let him in after apologies. The judge inspected the playing field and found it in perfect playing condition with two giant tarpaulins ready for immediate action.

Parking spaces, charging from one to two dollars, reared a harvest. So were owners of homes overlooking the field along Waveland and Sheffield aves. who opened their doors to fans who were willing to pay two dollars or more.

The sun played peek-a-boo in the grey clouds and every time it came out the bleacherites, perched in a huge section that looked like the side of a giant ocean liner, cheered.

APPEAL AGAINST BELL REFUND THROWN OUT

State Supreme Court Will Rehear Affiliate Case

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 5—The Ohio supreme court threw out today an appeal against a state utilities commission order providing $7,500,000 in refunds to Ohio Bell Telephone subscribers, but admitted for rehearing an affiliate case. Pending a decision on the rehearing will be delayed indefinitely.

A Cleveland labor group headed by Earl Harrison sought to upset the refund order which affected 44 Ohio municipalities. It was a compromise from a previous $11,800,000 figure and was designed to end 12 years of litigation. The labor group contended that if the commission had reheard the case, instead of accepting the compromise, it would have ordered refunds of at least $20,000,000.

The court ruled that the group could not contest the refund order because it was not a party to the original rate action. An application of Harrison and the others, however, to become parties to the case will be reheard by the court, it previously had been turned down by the utilities commission.

Refunds were to have been started in September, but the suits resulted in a delay.

STATE'S PENSION PAYMENT URGED

Allison Suggests Ferguson Allot Ohio's Share

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 5.—Finance Director M. Ray Allison suggested today that State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson immediately prepare to pay by Oct. 25 Ohio's share of October allowances to 111,000 old age pensioners.

The federal social security board has announced that its 50 percent share of the pensions (which total about $23 a person) would not be allocated until the state pension division complies with administrative changes demanded by the social security board.

Immediate Action Urged

Allison advised Ferguson by letter that to prevent any "unnecessary suffering" the state should make partial payments immediately. The social security board announced previously that if when its regulations were met allocations would be made retroactive.

Ferguson was in Washington today in an attempt to get the board to rescind its decisions which followed a controversy with Gov. Martin L. Davey over the Ohio division's administration. Davey has termed the federal board action "dirty politics."

Davey said today that his own counsel would defend him and two welfare department officials in a suit to compel compliance with social security board regulations on old age pensions.

He did not designate the lawyers immediately, but requested Atty. Gen. Herbert S. Duffy to name them as a special counsel to be employed at the personal expense of Davey, Mrs. Margaret Allman, state welfare director, and Wray Bevens, chief of the pension division.

Answer Due By Oct. 15

Duffy announced Monday after the supreme court suit was filed by Edgar S. Byers, Cleveland Heights attorney, that his office would not represent Davey unless the governor could "satisfactorily defend his refusal to comply with federal regulations."

The suit must be answered by Oct. 15.

The governor, in a letter to Duffy, today blamed the suit on two unnamed "political enemies" and said "our defense is so strong that it will open the eyes of the people of Ohio."

"We are most certainly entitled to be represented by counsel and in order to comply with the laws of Ohio I request that you agree to designate lawyers of our choosing as special counsel to appear for us in this matter at our expense," Davey said.

Byers, a special counsel for Duffy in a Cleveland case, brought the suit as a taxpayer.

Altmeyer Makes Plea

Duffy said he saw no reason for members of his own staff to defend Davey, Mrs. Allman and Bevens, since the social security board and Henry J. Berrodin, ousted pension division chief, had agreed that regulations were being violated.

At Washington, A. J. Altmeyer, chairman of the federal social security board, left with Bevens an indirect appeal for cooperation in adjusting pension difficulties between the two organizations.

Altmeyer informed Sen. Robert J. Bulkley (D) of Ohio during a conference yesterday that the national board needed Bevens' cooperation in adjusting deficiencies in the Ohio division so that it would be unnecessary to withhold federal funds which comprise 50 percent of payments to Ohio's 110,000 aged pensioners.

Permission Of Pennsylvania Asked For Discontinuance; Busses To Remain

THE Steubenville, East Liverpool and Beaver Valley Traction Co., filed today in Harrisburg a petition asking the Pennsylvania public utilities commission for permission to discontinue street car service between the state line and the eastern limits of Midland borough.

The line has been in operation since 1907, but about three years the traction company supplemented trolley service with bus service between East Liverpool and Midland and was granted permission to substitute busses for street cars between the eastern limits of Midland and Vanport.

Under the proposed change, busses would continue to operate between here and Beaver.

Officials of the company Monday night proposed to city council conversion of the Pleasant Heights and Grandview street car lines into bus lines and Tuesday investigated with a council committee possible rerouting of the lines to accommodate more residents.

The traction company also operates trolley and bus lines to Steubenville.

JUDGE SAMUEL WEST DIES IN CLEVELAND

Federal Jurist In Northern Ohio District Succumbs

By The Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 5.—Federal Judge Samuel H. West, 66, of the northern Ohio district, died early today at his home. He underwent a major operation about 10 days ago. He had been ill two months.

The taciturn jurist, a native of Iowa, was appointed to the United States district bench Dec. 11, 1928, by the late President Coolidge. He succeeded Judge D. C. Westenhaver.

Judge West, at 19 years of age, left a job as telegrapher for the Iowa Central railroad to study law at Bellefontaine, O., in the office of his attorney-uncle, William L. West, who became the "blind judge" of the Ohio supreme court.

Admitted to the Ohio bar in 1893, West served as Bellefontaine city attorney, Logan county prosecutor and as an Ohio state senator. He once was general attorney for the National Cash Register Co., of Dayton.

West came to Cleveland in 1910 as assistant counsel for the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railroad, subsequently absorbed by the New York Central. A few years later he became chief legal counsel for the N. Y. C.

He left this post for the bench, for which former U. S. Sen. Simeon D. Fess recommended him. He presided as junior judge to Federal Judge Paul Jones.

STATE NOMINEES PLEDGE REFORMS

Bricker, Sawyer Promise To Effect Remedial Changes

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 5.—Pledges of reforms in state and national governments were held out today by leading political candidates in Ohio as the November election campaign race quickened.

Speaking at opposite ends of the state, John W. Bricker and Charles Sawyer, Republican and Democratic gubernatorial aspirants, respectively, both promised if elected to effect highway department and other remedial changes.

Bricker, speaking in Lorain, also advocated more efficient functioning of the state utilities commission. "No case should take more than a year to complete," he said of the commission's work.

Sawyer, addressing a hometown audience in Cincinnati, included an appeal for support from "independent Republicans." He asserted that "we must divorce ourselves from the idea of rigid allegiance to party and support the right kind of men running on the right kind of platform."

At Van Wert, Robert A. Taft, Republican seeking to unseat Sen. Robert J. Bulkley, new deal follower, urged a return of "sound government" through reductions in federal spending and regulation of business.

Flaying new deal policies, Taft asserted that relaxation of federal interference in business would reduce unemployment by creating more jobs. He also urged that federal grants for poor relief be handled by states receiving them.

Taft and Bulkley will open a series of joint political debates in Marietta Saturday. The first joust will be on the subject, "new deal planned economy is a failure and offers no solution for unemployment and depression." It was selected by Taft. Each contestant selects the subject of the three debates he will open.

Approximately 800 Republican women campaign workers concluding a Columbus gathering yesterday cheered predictions of victory next month for party standard bearers made by Mrs. Bricker and Mrs. Taft. Party leaders and candidates also spoke.

Concurrently, Democratic headquarters here announced women workers in that party would hold district meetings throughout the state starting Saturday in Cleveland and ending Oct. 22 in Mansfield.

Other district gatherings were scheduled in Chillicothe, Oct. 12; Defiance, Oct. 13; Steubenville, Oct. 18; Toledo, Oct. 19, and Dayton, Oct. 21.

APPLICATIONS SWAMP CIVIL SERVICE BOARD

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 5.—Ohio civil service commissioners reported today that unprecedented demands had necessitated the printing of 115,000 application blanks for statewide eligibility examinations between Oct. 25 and Nov. 3.

"Great interest has been shown to date," asserted Commissioner Ralph Emmons, "but not as many applications have been filed as we expected. This is due, at least in part, to the fact that the examinations scheduled are usually difficult."

The tests, financed by a $40,000 social security board grant, were scheduled primarily to provide approximately 4,000 new employes for the state employment compensation commission, but have been extended to include other state departments.

MOORE ENTERS 'INSANITY' PLEA IN MURDER CASE

Flory Files Similar Answer As 2 Are Arraigned For First Degree Slayings

Special To The Review.

LISBON, Oct. 5—Not the "unwritten law," but "insanity" will be Frank Moore's appeal to escape the chair for the alleged slaying of August Fischer in East Liverpool.

Moore, East Liverpool painter, claimed Fischer, rug salesman, "broke up his home" when questioned by authorities after his arrest for the murder Aug. 31.

Moore was arraigned today before Judge W. F. Lones in common pleas court on a first degree murder indictment returned by the grand jury last week.

Charles Flory, Center township farmer, also pleaded insanity in the murder of his wife July 20.

Flory entered a "double-edged" plea, "not guilty and not guilty by reason of insanity."

First Plea Rejected

Judge Lones refused to accept Moore's first plea of "not guilty by reason of temporary insanity," and after a conference, the defense attorneys, Ben L. Bennett and G. Jay Clark of East Liverpool, stepped up to Judge Lones' bench and entered the second plea in written form.

Moore, according to authorities, argued all night with his wife about her dereliction, then obtained a gun and went to Fischer's home. He called him to the back porch and shot him, then gave himself up to Police Chief Hugh McDermott.

The county moved for quick trials for Moore and Flory. The court said two venires of 75 names each will be drawn Monday at 9 a. m.

Personal service is required on each prospective juror. Trials have been tentatively set for Nov. 14 for Flory and Nov. 28 for Moore.

Flory's representatives are Attorneys Walter Beck, Lisbon and Alfred Fitch, Salem.

Both declared themselves unable to hire attorneys and under state law they are entitled to state-paid counsel.

The Flory shooting occurred after the couple had returned from a homecoming celebration at Malvern. Flory told Sheriff Harry Gosney his wife struck him after he had picked up the shotgun, intending to shoot chicken hawks. The state will contend that Flory purchased a new box of shells at a Lisbon store intending to kill his wife.

23 Are Arraigned

Twenty three others indicted by the grand jury entered pleas Monday, among them Joe Thomas, formerly proprietor of the White Swan inn near Middleton on route 7. Thomas and his wife, Helen, are charged with arson in connection with an explosion wrecking the inn last March.

Mrs. Thomas, an expectant mother, will be arraigned later, courthouse authorities stated. Thomas entered a plea of not guilty and was released under $2,500 bond. He and Mrs. Thomas were secretly indicted.

Another secret indictment involved Matt Tusick of West Point charged with obtaining money un-

SHELLEY LOSES MOVE TO SPEED EARLE QUIZ

Records' Immediate Return Refused By Court

By The Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 5—District Attorney Carl B. Shelley lost today in a move to speed up a proposed grand jury inquiry of campaign charges against Gov. George H. Earle and 13 high state officials and Democratic party leaders.

The state supreme court, which last Monday opened the way for the grand jury inquiry refused to permit the immediate return of the grand jury records to the Dauphin county court because of court rules that the attorney general's announcement that he would seek a reargument of the case. A legislative inquiry of the charges is already under way.

The court normally retains the records of its decisions for 10 days.

CONGRESSMAN BOYLAN OF NEW YORK PASSES

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5—Congressman John J. Boylan, 68, (D) of New York, died early today in the French hospital following a protracted illness.

His death followed his rescue from his summer home at Lido Beach, Long Island, from which he was carried when the hurricane struck the coast two weeks ago.

Boylan had served 15 years in congress. He was born in New York and became a postal clerk after graduating from De La Salle institute. He was elected to the New York state assembly as a representative in 1910, and in 1913 became a state senator, holding that office until he was elected to congress in 1923.

Benes Resigns As President Of Czechoslovakia; French Premier Given Wide Powers

Senate And Deputies Accord Daladier's Cabinet Right To Govern By Decree Till Nov. 15 After Concession

FOREIGN POLICY WINS APPROVAL 535 TO 75

By The Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 5.—The senate today voted to grant Premier Eduard Daladier's cabinet powers to govern France by decree until Nov. 15, powers already approved by the chamber of deputies.

The senate's vote was 286 to 1. The chamber had voted the decree powers by 331 to 78, with 204 abstentions, after a stormy all-night session in which the premier met much more opposition than in the previous debate on approval of the four-power pact of Munich.

The chamber approved that accord for dismemberment of Czechoslovakia to save Europe's peace by 535 to 75.

Daladier did not pin the life of his cabinet on the senate vote, since his demand for decree powers was assured of easy acceptance.

Undefined Powers Granted

When the decree is published in the official journal, probably tomorrow, the Daladier government will have broad, almost undefined powers to rule the nation until Nov. 15.

Such powers were sought to grapple with the economic and financial ills confronting France. Daladier came into office last April 10 with similar powers, but they expired July 31.

In the chamber of deputies only by a strange combination of appeals to patriotism and shrewd political trading did Daladier keep socialists from casting their 157 votes against him.

He was forced to cut the term of the decree powers from Dec. 31 to the accepted Nov. 15, to promise the chamber publicly that he would respect the people's front social reforms, and agree to call parliament into session about Nov. 16, so the cabinet would have no chance of passing next year's budget by decree.

One report in chamber corridors was that the former socialist Premier Leon Blum got Daladier to agree to take some socialists into his predominantly radical-socialist cabinet, to permit the more leftist party to keep close watch on use of the decree powers.

Socialists Mum On Speech

The socialists, by abstaining rather than voting against the cabinet, kept alive the thesis that they support the government. But they sat silent after Daladier's speech closing the debate, while center and some rightists deputies cheered.

The communists voted against the government for the first time on Daladier's foreign policy, the peace achieved at Munich. They emphasized the break by voting against the full powers.

Some political sources reported socialist dissatisfaction with the government was based as much on foreign affairs as on the decree powers.

Socialist opposition hinges on two things. First there is the announced belief that the Munich accord among Germany, Italy, France and Britain will have been worthless unless it brings a general European settlement, including disarmament.

Second is the fear Daladier's "peace" with Italy will include a victory for insurgents in the Spanish civil war. Support of the Spanish government has been one of the socialists' main planks.

VENUE CHANGE DENIED CONN CASE DEFENDANT

By The Associated Press.

CADIZ, Oct. 5.—His request for a change of venue denied, Bernard Masulla of Pittsburh will go on trial here Monday on a first degree murder charge in the slaying of State Highway Patrolman George Conn. Masulla had contended he could not get a fair trial because of "prejudice" in this county.

After overruling the plea, Common Pleas Judge Barclay W. Moore set trial of Booker Johnson, Negro, in the same case, for Oct. 24. Charles Ford, Negro, also is accused in the patrolman's death, for which Peter Serino was acquitted Sept. 24.

Conn was shot to death near Freeport, Sept. 27, 1937.

RUSSIAN-FRENCH RELATIONS COOL

Soviet Asks 'What Is Pact Worth?' After Munich

By The Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Oct. 5.—A prediction of sharp revival of Communist international activity, especially in France, was made today by some foreign observers following a cooling of Soviet-French relations.

The semi-official newspaper Le Journal de Moscou, often the mirror of foreign office views, said emphatically that, as a result of the four-power Munich agreement, France had lost all her European allies but England and demanded, "who can rely on England?"

"Isolation is the price France will pay for Munich, where she received not even a scrap of paper but only an oral promise from Adolf Hitler," the paper asserted.

It added: "After the capitulation of Munich (where France, Italy and Great Britain reached an accord Sept. 30 granting Chancellor Hitler Sudeten German areas of Czechoslovakia, a French ally), who will believe again the word of France? Who will remain her ally?

"Rumania or Yugoslavia (with the little entente) will not hesitate any longer to swing over to the side of German fascism.

"And as for Poland—Poland certainly is lost to France."

The journal did not state specifically that Moscow intended to cancel the French-Soviet pact of May, 1935, but asked, "what is it worth now that France has torn up its treaty of alliance with Czechoslovakia?"

The French-Soviet treaty provided for assistance in case of attack on either party by a third power. It was regarded widely as France's answer to the threat of German rearmament under Hitler, but because of the acutely anti-Soviet policy of the Nazi regime, the pact also became an obstacle to French-German rapprochement.

With the pact seemingly relegated to the scrap heap, the question was, "what will Moscow do?"

Opinions among qualified foreign observers were not unanimous, but some believed one result would be an intensification of Communist activity.

ARMY EXTENDS DRIVE HERE FOR 1939 CHEST

Campaign To Be Continued For Goal Of $4,750

The Salvation Army campaign to meet the $1,200 deficit in the budget which was not subscribed in last week's drive was continued indefinitely today. About $3,550 of the $4,750 quota has been pledged.

Final reports on the solicitation were to have been made at the Diamond headquarters Tuesday night. Workers are now making a check of all contributions and letters will be sent to former contributors who were not solicited.

It is possible that a "Tag day" will be held in the next week or two to reach those who may be willing to contribute in a small amount.

The campaign headquarters in the former G. R. Kinney shoe store room in the Diamond will be closed shortly. It has been in charge of W. C. Vernon, Columbus campaign director.

Departure May Ease Acute Situation And Clear Path For Stronger Tie Between Prague And Nazi Regimes

ELECTION NECESSARY TO SELECT SUCCESSOR

By The Associated Press.

PRAGUE, Oct. 5.—The resignation of President Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia was officially announced today.

The resignation of the chief of state, who had held his little republic together as long as possible under pressure of tremendous events, was not unexpected although it had been denied several times recently that he intended to step down. Benes became president of Czechoslovakia in December, 1935, succeeding the founder of the republic, the late Thomas G. Masaryk.

Munich Accord Killing Blow

The Munich agreement of the four big powers, compelling Czechoslovakia to cede the Sudetenland to Germany, represented a complete failure of the foreign policy with which Benes had been closely associated since the founding of the state 20 years ago.

The pressure of Britain and France to compel Benes and his government to accept submission to the terms of Adolf Hitler proved a tremendous blow to his hopes.

Informed persons felt that Benes' departure from office—and possibly from the country — might remove the current acute situation and make collaboration with Germany possible.

Benes had been the target for bitter attacks by Hitler and other German leaders and for a scathing campaign of denunciation in the German press.

Syrovy May Assume Post

It was understood that Gen. Jan Syrovy, the soldier-premier would be acting president until an election could be arranged to choose Benes' successor.

The election will be conducted by the national assembly, composed of the chamber of deputies and the senate sitting together.

Benes prepared to broadcast his farewell address to the world today.

Some souces said that Benes' resignation followed renewed German pressure based on Hitler's personal antagonism to the Czechoslovak president.

It was reliably reported that Hitler had indicated he would be more generous in his negotiations with the new Czech state if a president more acceptable to Germany were named.

Economic Readjustments Started

Meanwhile a revamped Czechoslovak government started work on economic readjustments to put the republic, shrinking daily as foreign armies march in, on a stable basis.

The most pressing need was for the $50,000,000 loan promised by Prime Minister Chamberlain of Britain This the dismembered country hoped to get soon, for the loss of industrial areas struck a violent blow at its economic structure.

Financial experts survived what probably would be left after the fulfillment of German, Polish and Hungarian claims to minority districts and after plebiscites determine disposition of other regions. They expected a good share of the projected loan would be used for public works projects.

The Czechoslovak government resigned yesterday and Benes had named a new cabinet, retaining as premier-defense Syrovy, Frantisek Chvalkovsky, minister to Rome, succeeded Kamil Krofta as foreign affairs minister.

Three Slovaks were named—Gen. Vladimir Caidos, minister of communications; Imrich Karvas, commerce; and Vladimir Sajnor, justice.

The new government was considered a moderate-rightist grouping.

Minister without portfolio Cermak, a Slovak, provoked the cabinet turnover when he resigned, declaring government proposals regarding Slovak autonomy were inadequate. He charged the government with temporizing in the matter which is becoming more acute because Ruthenians in eastern Czechoslovakia joined forces with the Slovaks in agitating for autonomy.

Economic experts who attempted to form a picture of the future Czechoslovakia assumed that territories with 51 percent or more of non-Czechoslovak population would be lost in plebiscites.

On this basis they calculated the republic would retain about 49 percent of its industrial plant and about 64 percent of the workers previously engaged throughout the country.

CUMBERLAND COUNCIL BLOCKS SCHOOL SITE

Special To The Review.

NEW CUMBERLAND, Oct. 5.—Council Tuesday night told William J. Moore of Weirton, attorney for the county school board, it would not close the alley between Ridge and Second aves. on the proposed new school lot until the board proved no other lot in town was suitable.

The property being considered by the board for the PWA project high school is between the two streets adjoining a lot owned by R. M. Brown, and includes the home of R. B. McNeil. Condemnation proceedings on the property have already been started by the board.

Council will meet with board as soon as possible to come to terms on the selection of a site. J. W. Chambers, mayor, intimated Tuesday night the general sentiment of the town was against the site now being considered.

DEMOCRATS WILL HEAR M'CORT AND WHEATLEY

C. T. McCort of St. Clairsville, Democratic nominee for the state senate, and Robert Wheatley of Salineville, Democratic nominee for county engineer, will speak in the Eastern Ohio Democratic club tonight at 7:30 in the second of a series of political rallies.

Mr. McCort is expected to speak on the burning of Ohio coal in Ohio institutions. Both speakers will be introduced by Ferguson Kind, club president, and refreshments will be served.

The next rally is set for next Wednesday, Columbus day.

Italy Bans Career Women

ROME, Italy—Mussolini is determined to keep Italian women in the kitchen. He doesn't want them emancipated careerists competing with men.

Not more than 10 percent of the employes in any firm or government bureau may be women, according to an order of the Council of Ministers. Certain exclusively women's lines of work will be excepted.

M'CLELLAND ELECTED PRESIDENT OF KIWANIS

The Last Celebration

TAMPA, Fla.—The career of Frank A. Mullan, 69, known as "Pop" to generations of students at the University of Tampa, where he was night watchman, ended amid blaring horns and shouting.

Dressed in fireman's hat and gaudy blue pajamas, Pop was marching in the freshmen's "beat Miami" parade. Without warning, he fell dead.

Love-Honor-Protect

SANTA ANA, Calif.—Policeman H. E. Holmes is under suspension charged with "gross violation of duty." The report of Chief F. W. Howard states Holmes stood by when a woman was attacked by Gladys Durham and then testified for the latter during a trial in which she was fined $10.

But that's not the whole story. The woman attacked was Holmes' wife.

Flat Foot Flattened—

CHICAGO — Policeman Martin Harrington waved at the driver of the big limousine not to make a right turn at busy State and Randolph sts.

Chauffeur Walter Boston brought the car to an abrupt stop.

The rush-hour traffic din smothered the cop's shouting, and Boston leaned out. "I can't hear you."

"I was saying," the policeman bellowed, "that you can't make a right turn here."

"And now I'm saying, you stopped you car on my left foot. It hurts. Drive on."

Timely Excuse

OMAHA, Neb.—John Votroubek was called for jury duty.

"Your honor," he said, "I have a ticket for the World Series game."

District Judge Charles Leslie excused him.

LOCAL COURT INCOME $1,355 IN SEPTEMBER

Revenue For Month Exceeds August, July Totals

Municipal court fines and costs for September passed August and July totals, figures announced today by John W. Coleman, municipal clerk, indicate.

The September total was $1,355.37, or $236.15 more than the August figure. A sum of $805.25 was collected in civil receipts, $562.80 in trustees and judgments and other actions, and $235.45 in civil costs.

Criminal proceedings brought in $550.22, and of the amount $528.22 was paid the city treasurer. Most of the balance was paid to the county treasurer and state treasurer for highway patrol fines.

During September 62 civil cases were filed, 45 disposed of and 188 pending. Fifteen state civil cases were filed, 10 disposed of and 22 pending, and 68 city criminal cases filed, 69 disposed of and 13 pending.

NEVILLE ASSOCIATION HEARS SCHOOL HEADS

Means And Williamson Talk On Possible Program

The type of training public schools should offer was discussed by H. G. Means, superintendent of schools, and Dr. J. T. Williamson, board member, in the Neville Home and School association meeting Tuesday night.

A playlet by pupils with Miss Laura Neiser, sixth grade teacher, assisted by Miss Miriam Brown, seventh grade teacher, was presented.

In the business meeting Mrs. Vernon Allison was appointed chairman of the membership committee. Members inspected the redecorated building and new furnace installed during the summer.

The next meeting will be Nov. 1.

Garfield's Jubilee Arranged For Nov. 18

The Garfield school golden jubilee celebration will be held Friday, Nov. 18, it was decided Tuesday night as the Parent-Teachers League met in the school building.

With approximately 60 in attendance, Carroll P. Lynch, city solicitor, spoke on "International Law And The World Today." A musical program was presented.

After plans had been furthered for the 50th anniversary program, a banner made by teachers was presented. At the end of the year it will be given to the room with the best parent attendance. The next meeting is Nov. 1.

Fredericktown Group To Plan Year On Friday

The Fredericktown Parent-Teachers association will make plans for the year in its first meeting set for 8 p. m. Friday in the school building.

Wilbur Toland, president, and Jay Hostetter are arranging the program. Miss Della Ingles is teacher in the building.

HI-Y CLUB PLANS SAFE TRACK FOR BICYCLISTS

Twenty-seven Hi-Y members met in the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday night and took steps toward prevention of bicycle accidents.

It was suggested that children cyclists ride on the new bicycle track being prepared at the Y. M. C. A. playground on Bradshaw ave. This track is almost a quarter-mile in circumference and will be smooth enough to permit fast and safe riding.

Although no definite decision has been made, there was discussion of the possibility of forming a bicycle club at the playground.

Clarence Thomas, club president, presided at the business meeting and G. A. Beck, principal of East Liverpool High school, spoke on "Men of Accomplishment."

SPEAKER MIXES PROGRAMS

OMAHA, Neb.—Two meetings were in progress at a hotel and H. E. Dickinson, general manager of the Northwestern railroad lines here was scheduled to address one of them. Dickinson arrived, spoke and then learned he addressed the wrong program.

SCHRAMM TO DIRECT WELLSVILLE OUTPOST

Adj. Albert Schramm, in charge of the East Liverpool Salvation Army corps, has assumed charge of the Wellsville outpost at Sixth and Main sts., following the resignation of Clarence Steed, who has been directing the work.

A Salvation service will be held in the Wellsville quarters tonight, and will be preceded by an open-air service. The meeting will be in charge of the Torch Bearers of the East Liverpool brigade and Adj. and Mrs. Schramm. Special instrumental music and singing also will be featured. The public is invited.

COUNCIL TO PICK STREET ORDER IN REPAIR PROJECT

Committee Will Confer With Officials In Wellsville To Determine Program

Wellsville city council will determine the order in which streets will be improved under the blanket WPA project as the result of an agreement reached at Tuesday night's meeting.

President E. P. Neitz was instructed to appoint a committee to negotiate with Mayor Howard L. Kelley and Service-Safety Director C. Fred Gluth in determining the streets to be improved first. Mr. Neitz did not name the committee at the council meeting but indicated that he would act within a few days.

The action was taken after Councilman George White called attention to the condition of Anderson ave. between 10th and 11th sts. Director Gluth reported that this street was to be improved eventually but that the most important streets were being taken up first. He stated that it was the plan of his department to improve Anderson ave. at the same time as 11th st.

Property Owner Complains

George McCartney, Anderson ave. property owner, said he was anxious to lay a sidewalk in front of his property but that it would be useless so long as the street was unimproved. He reported that surface water from 10th and 11th sts. frequently flooded his property following rains.

Mayor Kelley suggested that an advisory committee from council be selected to work with the administrative branch on the street improvement program. He said the committee might set aside a time when property holders would be permitted to present their cases for early improvement of their streets. The mayor said the service department would be guided by the action of the council committee.

Councilmen also gave their approval to an active campaign in support of the one and one-half mill light levy which will be resubmitted to the voters at the November election and Harry Kampmann, S. J. Adams and O. B. Kessel were named to direct the appeal.

Support of the proposal, which requires a 65 percent affirmative vote, will be sought among service clubs, parent-teacher associations, women's clubs, patriotic and fraternal groups and at football games, in theaters and at other large gatherings. Each councilman was instructed to look after the campaign in his own ward.

City Auditor Howard Donnelly was instructed to furnish councilmen with a financial report which will show what has been accomplished with this levy in the past two years and what will result if it is renewed for another two-year period.

The suggestion of Mayor Kelley that a balance remaining in the PWA waterworks improvement fund be spent in the purchase and installation of new valves for the waterworks system was approved after Councilman Joseph L. Finnie reported favorably. Mayor Kelley said the improvements would mean no added expense to the taxpayers as this money was already available in the $163,000 fund established by the city and the WPA for the waterworks improvements.

Council also ordered that the option for the Miss Mabel Boyd property at Buckeye ave. and 11th st. be taken up at the discretion of the service director. The site will be used for a pumping station to provide a water supply for Spring Hill cemetery and residents of the hill-top districts.

Pump Station Approved

The state PWA has approved a pumping station at this point but has not yet authorized the purchase of the site from the money provided for the water works improvement.

Clerk Ray Hamilton read a letter from Harry Sharp, division state highway department engineer at New Philadelphia, received Friday, Sept. 30, designating Monday Oct. 3 at 10 a. m. for a conference with the streets and lights committee of council to discuss the improvement of Buckeye ave.

The committee, President Neitz reported, found it impossible to attend the conference at the time set by Mr. Sharp and Mr. Hamilton was instructed to rearrange the conference for next Monday morning if convenient to the engineer.

Mayor Kelley reported collections in fines amounting to $269.10 during the month of September.

Mr. Finnie called council's attention to stray and unlicensed dogs running at large and said that the practice should be stopped. Mayor Kelley said during the first year of his administration police destroyed more than 100 stray dogs but when a campaign against unlicensed dogs was started during the next year he was warned "by Lisbon" to "lay off." He added that he had requested the county dog warden on numerous occasions to assist in apprehending ownerless dogs but could obtain "no cooperation."

Councilman Finnie then introduced a motion instructing Clerk Hamilton to write to County Dog Warden Daniel Butch requesting information as to how the city should cope with the local dog situation. The motion was passed. He said that the city might be required to establish a pound for captured dogs to give owners an opportunity to claim them.

Daily Horoscope

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, Oct. 6

A DAY OF RATHER "mixed influences," in astrological parlance, is read from a peculiar chain of planetary aspects. These are of changeable and variable nature, and may incite a variety of experiences and events, fluctuating from adverse to fortuitous. There are signs of important contracts or business transactions, which should be both lucrative and generous. At the same time there is danger of expansion, extravagance and a tendency to "plunge." There also may be some enmity and jealousy. With care there should be much success and progress.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a successful and progressive year, although there may be fluctuations, the usual ups and downs, to cope with, mainly by shrewd conservation of funds and wise expenditures. These may cause enmity and jealousy, resulting in eventual loss or shrinkage in assets.

A child born on this day may be enterprising, progressive and ambitious. It may have generous impulses and much kindliness, despite which it may incite enmities and jealousies.

BALLOTS TO COST $10,000

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 5—Printed pro and con arguments on a proposed constitutional amendment for appointment of supreme and appellate judges are going to cost Ohioans $10,000 under the allotment today by the state emergency board to Secretary of State William J. Second Thought

STILL grateful for reprieve from war over Sudetenland, Europe's politicians and masses now are realizing, as it was certain they would, the uncertainty of their state.

The realities of the situation weren't altered by the shouts of joy raised in every capital, except Prague, after the Munich agreement. Adolf Hitler and his Nazi government were—still are—ready to lead Germany to war.

As a wit describes the situation, Europe has entered an era of appeasement, with the democracies doing the appeasing. Within the last few days Czechoslovakia has appeased Poland and Hungary with cessions of territory. But peace and surrender at the point of a gun are not the same thing.

Peace can be purchased with surrender. It can be purchased, also, with strength sufficient to command respect from an aggressor. All signs indicate it will be with strength that Great Britain and France will try to purchase peace from Germany in the future.

It is true, as the text of the Chamberlain-Hitler peace pact says, that the people of Great Britain and Germany "desire never to go to war with one another again." But it is not people who make war; it is the interpretations which statesmen place on circumstances. Despite Munich, despite a stirring manifestation of hatred for war among all nationalities, including the Germans and Italians, European war has not ceased to be a probability.

That thought is foremost in Europe, on the heels of the peace celebration last week. There is no reason to harbor the illusion that Germany's leader would give ground in an issue of war or peace, or could give ground if he would. He has chosen to carved out his place in history and Germany's place in the sun with the sword.

It is his destiny, therefore, to deal with a world forced to protect itself as realistically as he has attacked it. That seems to be the reaction from the world's frantic efforts to avert war over the Sudeten issue.

The Maplewood Light

THE traffic situation on St. Clair ave. near Maplewood ave, is becoming more acute with each passing day.

The city erected a light at the intersection about a year ago and its operation has brought expressions of both condemnation and praise ever since.

The signal was placed there for two reasons:

1. To protect children crossing St. Clair ave. to the Maplewood school.

2. To slow down traffic and control unscrupulous speeders.

Most of its critics are agreed that its value as a protection to pupils cannot be disputed and have no objection to its operation during school hours, but they are not at all convinced it must function 24 or even 18 hours a day.

The policy of 24-hour-day-in-and-out operation at an intersection where cross-traffic in itself is not sufficient to warrant it, undoubtedly has the effect of provoking wholesale disrespect and downright disregard for a traffic light.

The Maplewood signal undoubtedly serves an urgent need and partially, at least, a worthy purpose, during school hours, but it has done little to correct speeding evils at other times during the day and night.

As a matter of fact, violations in the area which the light is designed to protect are two-fold because St. Clair ave. at that point is a 20-mile speed limit zone, and if one regulation fails to achieve the desired results there is little reason for believing that a second will, especially without rigid enforcement.

The fact remains that the light is operating both in and out of school hours and it is the obligation of every motorist to observe it. Chief McDermott has appealed to residents of the district to help enforce it in the absence of adequate police man power.

A child's life may be at stake and there is nothing so ghastly and inexcusable as wanton murder on the highways.

Success Formula

PROBABLY Harry Hopkins, the relief tycoon, heard that old success formula about making yourself indispensable when he was a growing boy out in Iowa. It's a long jump from being an ordinary welfare worker, or even an extraordinary one, to a seat among the mighty of the wealthiest country on earth. Mr. Hopkins evidently has been making himself indispensable.

Don't imagine that the success formula lets a man stop with merely being indispensable in one job, though. There's always a place to be indispensable higher up, and that's where Mr. Hopkins seems to be aiming. With due apology for speculating on his career, some observers already see him bearing the title: Secretary of Welfare of the United States.

Creation of a department of welfare is one of the points in the executive reorganization proposal. The department would be charged with numerous duties ranging from administration of federal health laws to relief of the needy and distressed. In the latter capacity, it would administer not only a systematic public relief but emergency relief. It is interesting to note, in this connection, that among the first to rush to the rescue in New England and Charleston was Mr. Hopkins, who said he would spare nothing to rehabilitate the victims of wind and water.

In other words, with the title still in the future, Mr. Hopkins already is doing almost everything which a secretary of public welfare in the president's cabinet would be required to do.

Today And Tomorrow

Now That Panic's Over The British And French Get Chance To Judge New Europe Realistically

By WALTER LIPPMANN

BEFORE any one can begin to understand the consequences of the Munich peace, the world will have to recover its composure after the hysterical terror of the last month. Beginning in the week before the Nuremberg speech the European peoples and their statesmen were seized with panic which finally rendered impossible any cool and realistic calculation of the actual situation. For the first time in the history of warfare the civil population felt itself to be in greater danger than the soldiers at the front; for the first time in the history of modern diplomacy the political leaders felt that they themselves might in a week or so be blown to bits and that even if they escaped to places of relative safety, their immediate families, friends, their most cherished possessions might at any moment be destroyed.

Mr. Lippmann

The amazing events which took place between Mr. Chamberlain's journey to Berchtesgaden and his journey to Munich are explicable only as a race against the panic which was taking possession of Europe. The panic was greatest in England because after centuries of an invlunerable security the English people were the least prepared for and the least resigned to the horrors of actual invasion. But after Nuremberg when the French mobilization became rapid, the panic spread to France, and from there the contagion took such hold in Italy that it had become doubtful whether Mussolini could have fulfilled the obligations of the Rome-Berlin axis. The panic had begun to invade Germany. Only the iron censorship and the swift action which Hitler insisted upon, forestalled some kind of wild, despairing resistance to the threatened war. Two weeks more of the fierce tension that existed in Europe after Sept. 15 and the situation everywhere might well have become quite incalculable. Nobody could wait to negotiate a statesman-like settlement. But Hitler, thanks to his mastery of the German people, could hold his position just a little longer than Mr. Chamberlain or M. Daladier.

THE first explanations of Mr. Chamberlain and the immediate comment of the British and French press must, therefore, be regarded as the exclamation of men who are dazed but immeasurably relieved at their escape from an overwhelming danger. They throw no light upon the future of Europe because what is being said now is a reaction to the danger of the immediate past and not a considered policy dealing with what is to come. A considered policy will not and can not emerge from the wreckage of the whole existing system of public law, alliances and systems of strategic defense until British and French public opinion recovers from the shell-shock which it is now suffering. For that reason the debates which will take place in the two parliaments this week may be important. They may be important not because they will have the smallest effect upon immediate events but because they may mark the beginning of that reeducation and readaption to the new realities which shell-shocked nations, like individuals, must pass through.

The great question in these debates will be whether the British and French are healthy and vigorous enough to come quickly to a candid recognition of what has actually happened, or whether the shock has been so great that the truth is unbearable and a flight from reality is necessary. What the two democracies decide to believe about these events will determine whether they are able still to protect their nearest and most vital interests in the days to come or whether they are to go on through illusions to disaster.

The immediately comforting but ultimately disastrous interpretation will be to say that in agreeing to the dismemberment, they have applied the principle of self-determination, that at Munich they substituted a negotiated settlement for one dictated by violence, that the rupture of the alliances make Czechoslovakia another neutralized state like Switzerland, that the dismemberment of the Czechoslovak republic corrects the injustices and the follies of the Versailles system and that the reconstruction of Europe by four statesmen working under an expiring ultimatum is the foundation of a new and better international order.

IT will be a great temptation to adopt this interpretation and to derive from it the feeling that what has been done is not only a relief from terror but righteous as well. Yet such an interpretation will be only a refusal to look at disagreeable facts and the practical consequences of such a flight from reality will be very serious. For if in a fervor of self-justification, the British and French peoples, choose to believe that what they have accepted was not only necessary but good, they will begin again to disarm themselves physically and politically.

In a Europe ruled by military force they will again neglect their military defenses and by doing that they will hasten the day when they will be confronted with claims that touch even more closely than did Czechoslovakia, their vital interests and their national security. If they really believe, as Mr. Chamberlain on his return exclaimed with pardonable excitement, that they have already won peace in their own time, they will have done the one thing which makes it most unlikely that they will enjoy peace in their own time.

The alternative interpretation is to recognize frankly, humbly and bravely that they have yielded to the threat of force and they must now live in a Europe in which no treaty, no law and no engagement is better than the force which is ready to support it. They will not pretend that Czechoslovakia is dismembered in accordance with the principle of self-determination, for the population involved has had no chance, and will never have the chance, freely to express its will. They will recognize clearly that Hitler demanded for himself in the name of liberal principles that which he will immediately deny to them and their friends in the name of his own principles. And so at least, though they have been defeated by force, they will not also be deceived by their own wishful rationalizations.

Only by remaining undeceived can the British and the French hope eventually to judge realistically the new situation in which they find themselves and the measures which they must take to protect themselves in the days to come. For Munich was not only the end of an epoch, and the new frontiers of Czechoslovakia are not the last stage but the first in a long and complicated reconstruction of the map of Europe and perhaps of the world.

What is to come of it no man living can today foresee. For no man can truly estimate now the imponderable and incalculable forces that have been unloosed within the ancient social structure of the European continent. But this much we can know, that momentous decisions will have to be taken rapidly and in a long series across the years, and that those who can exercise the most force coolly and without illusions will have, as they have had this month, the last word in deciding the issues.

Paris '19, Munich '38

Another Treaty Is Made By 'Big Four'

THE uncertainties of diplomacy being as they are, perhaps it's not too soon to speculate that one day the conference in Munich may be subject to the same criticisms which the peace conference in Paris 19 years ago has aroused—that it was shortsighted, unfair and arbitrary.

There is this difference, that the Munich conference convened to prevent a war, not to settle one. But it must not be forgotten that in 1919 the statesmen thought they were preventing future wars, too.

In both cases there was a "big four." The Japanese took no part at Paris except when their interests were involved directly and Russia was excluded, as it was at Munich.

The quartet in 1919 was composed of Clemenceau for France, Lloyd George for Britain, Orlando for Italy and Wilson for the United States. Theoretically, they were all on the same side. Actually, they were intent on cutting one another's throats, with the exception of Wilson, who renounced all claims for the United States and insisted on unselfish and ethical settlements.

Germany was excluded from the Paris conference, just as Czechoslovakia was excluded from the Muich conference. In both cases, the country with most at stake was denied a voice to state its position.

IN 1919 the "big four" all represented democracies, as they were reminded when they tried to consolidate their positions. Clemenceau had to resign as soon as the treaty went into effect, because he hadn't gained enough for France. Orlando was dismissed before the treaty went into effect. Lloyd George held on by dint of letting parliament dictate many of his important decisions. Wilson was repudiated by the United States senate for his work.

Three of the "big four" spoke English in 1919. Orlando, the odd man, was at such a disadvantage that the conference sometimes had the aspect of a "big three," instead of a "big four." At Munich, one of the two dictators, Mussolini, could speak English, enabling him to understand Chamberlain, who speaks neither German nor French; Hitler could understand only German; Daladier could understand French. It was Chamberlain who remarked that the difficulties of reaching an agreement with another man through an interpreter are almost insuperable.

In 1919 it was Clemenceau who relied on force as the great arbiter; in 1938 it was Hitler. Mussolini played the role of Lloyd George as go-between. But Chamberlain was no Wilson, nor was Daladier an Orlando.

Another treaty has been added to this generation's growing list of treaties—most of them conspicuous only because they were broken. Perhaps this one will be different.

Yes, There Is A Rail Problem

But Unions And Management Can't Agree What It is

A Discussion By Louis Stark In The New York Times

ON one point in their wage dispute, both the carriers and the unions agree: The railroads of the nation are facing a crisis and something should be done about it. But there is no agreement on the causes of the crisis.

The managements ascribe it to the depression, decreased traffic, competition from other forms of transportation, excessive taxation, restrictive rate-making rules, increased prices of materials, low levels of passenger and freight rates, high wages and burdensome union rules.

The unions insist that the roads are burdened with a topheavy capital structure, that their management is no longer conducted by operating heads but by "railroad bankers" lacking in experience; that the financial malpractices of the past are now showing their effects and that perhaps the only way out for some of the roads is "through the wringer" of bankruptcy.

The railroads contend that they are paying the highest average annual wages in their history, namely—$1,785, to the 917,000 employes who worked at some time in every one of the 12 months of 1937. The unions assert that the average wage of all the 1,740,000 men on the 1937 payrolls was $1,115 annually.

THE managements' figures are based upon interstate commerce commission reports showing employment at the middle of the month. The union argument is based on the figures prepared for the first time by the railroad retirement board covering the income of every wage earner on the roads for every minute he was employed.

Excluding executives, officials and staff assistants, the roads say, the average hourly earnings of rail employes in the first three months of 1938 was 77.7 cents, the highest wage on record. This is disputed by the unions, which claim the average hourly wage in June, 1938, was 72.1 cents an hour, an increase of 1 cent in 18 years. The carriers assert the increase was 11 cents.

The managements contend that wages are such a large part of the industry's costs that a wage reduction would be of enormous benefit to them at this time. The unions hold that wages have never been a drain on the industry and that they have been a decreasing factor since 1920, when 56.4 cents of every railroad dollar went for wages as compared with 46 cents in 1937.

Maintaining that the men have made many sacrifices, the unions say that the number of employes manning the roads is 55 percent of the number who were employed in 1920, a drop of approximately 1,000,000 men. Of those employed only some 53 percent, they say, have full time employment.

THE management contention is that with decreased business fewer employes are necessary and that engineering and mechanical improvements account for greater efficiency and productivity per man.

The unions assert that the part played by employes in increasing efficiency cannot be discounted and offer figures to prove that not only have improved mechanical advances worked many men out of jobs but that the roads are now receiving 88 percent more work per employe, 101 percent more work an employe hour and 92 percent more work a dollar of wages than they did in 1920.

There is a disagreement on the effect of the rise in carloadings on the immediate future of rail revenues. The roads say that carloadings today are at the 1922 level, that in the first 23 weeks of 1938 they handled 25 percent less freight than in the corresponding period last year.

The unions assert that not only have carloadings gone up steadily since March, but the net operating incomes of the carriers have increased at a greater rate. To this the carriers reply that, while carloadings at present seem to be on the upgrade, they expect the seasonal curve to flatten out in October. The unions look for a much greater rail revenue in 1938 than was the case in 1937, but the carriers are less optimistic.

Materials have gone up rapidly in recent years, according to the carriers.

If that is correct, say the unions, it is not logical to demand a scaling down of wages. The employers do not demand percentage cuts of material costs simply because they could use the money to good advantage, the unions assert.

ON Sept. 14, 1937, Thomas G. Masaryk, creator of Czechoslovakia, died. On Sept. 14, 1938, Neville Chamberlain, prime minister of the United Kingdom, disclosed to his fellow minister his plan to fly to the dictator of Germany to appeal for an agreement to maintain the sovereignty of the nation Masaryk fathered.

A year ago today Masaryk's body was buried in the village churchyard of Lany after demonstrations of popular affection and respect and loyalty that, because of their spontaneity, obvious sincerity and simplicity, deeply impressed seasoned observers.

"Here," wrote one, "it was not an ordered and paraded assembly of 'fronts' or totalitarian parties gathered in masses by a precise political machine. One saw rich and poor, peasant and factory hand and employer who had been begged by the authorities to stay away from the overcrowded capital." The mourners were estimated at two millions.

Dr. Masaryk was led by his philosophical studies to form a "realist movement." He named the political party which he formed to accomplish his purpose the Realist party. It is an ironical fact that the monument his genius erected is about to be demolished by other realists.—An Editorial in The New York Sun.

Face The Facts

Movie Producers Go A Little Too Far When They Picture The Rich As Sore Because They Can't Be Poor

By DAMON RUNYON

WE got into a couple of theaters last week on our elbow, as the saying is, and therefore we could not presume to pass judgment on the merits of the plays. We do not care to have producers going around giving us a reputation as a fellow who looks gift horses in the mouth. We might lose some horses.

We would never make a good dramatic critic under any circumstances and certainly not if we always got in free—though mark you, we are not suggesting for a minute that regular movie critics ought to pay. As we understand the situation, they suffer enough as it is.

But we must take issue with one of the fundamentals of the movie story, which is that the rich are invariably discontented and unhappy and that the poor are always joyous.

We have been studying this theory for some years now, mainly at long range as far as the rich are concerned, but at first hand with the poor.

It is our conclusion that the rich seem to manage to keep in right good spirits, while on the other hand there is occasionally some moroseness to be detected among the poor. We make bold to say that many of the poor are downright bored.

We will go farther and say that many of them would gladly exchange places with the rich, despite the premise of the movie story that it is the rich who would gladly change places with the poor. We have confirmed this by asking some of the poor if they would like such a change and the answer in all cases was, "You're darn tootin'."

MOVIES are supposed to mirror life. Come to think of it, we just saw a trailer that bespoke an impending picture in just that way. We contend that the never-ending gloom of the rich as depicted in the movies is not life.

We can see how some of the movie makers might have erred in this premise through ignorance in the beginning, but we cannot see why they persist in it.

Just suppose a movie story is submitted to some rich producer, a stickler for the accurate mirroring of life, in which story the rich Farthingales are presented as unhappy because of their lot, surrounded as they are by luxury and people to wait on them hand and foot, swell automobiles, yachts, caviar and all that sort of thing.

They yearn, so the story says, for the happy-go-lucky life of the Flannagans, over beyond the railroad tracks, where poverty starkly stalks, but where there is contentment, according to the story. We will omit any extended mention here of lovely little Marianna Harrigan who enters into the story with a wardrobe and diction somewhat surprising for her upbringing, or what happens to her and young Sidney Farthingale.

WE are not concerned with that phase of the story. We are concerned with the alleged unhappiness of the rich Farthingales and with the producer as he reads the story. In another day, he might have been excused for saying to himself, "This is mirroring life," and ordering his cameramen to start shooting, but we feel sure any producer knows better now.

All he has to do is consider his own case and ask himself: "Arbuthnot, are you unhappy? Would you like to change places with the poor?"

If he asked himself these questions, we are pretty sure that Arbuthnot would see that the story did not mirror life at all and he would hie him forth from his gold-inlaid studio and find the writer that submitted the story to him and give him a swift kick in the trousers for trying to palm off a spurious mirroring on him.

Moreover, his fellow producers would also start booting writers who cooked up stories about the rich always being unhappy and the writers might then give us the facts of life which are that the rich do not feel sad at all about being rich and that in general they have a swell time, while the poor so far from being contented, are sizzling over their lot.

We have gazed from afar at Mr. Jock Whitney and Mr. Alfy Vanderbilt and Mr. Warren Wright and several of the Rockefellers and a couple of Morgans and a raft of other rich and it always struck us that they looked happy enough. We never saw any of them shedding tears over being rich, at least not in public, and we doubt if they cry about it in private. Their butlers would kick about the noise.

The only rich man we ever heard of who was unhappy about his wealth was a Wall Streeter who was said to be worth about $20,000,000. He was always extremely unhappy because it was not $40,000,00.

WHEN you stop to think of millions of men shaving day after day, week after week, month after month and so on, it's a wonder what becomes of all the whiskers. But don't imagine for a minute they all go down the drain, oh no.

Any neat housekeeper can tell you what becomes of them. They end up in all sorts of odd places.

For the most part they go into the manufacture of what is known as whisker water, a delectable concoction found in the washbowl just after Papa has finished using the bathroom and the next fellow takes his turn. If the next fellow is Mama, she raises a rumpus, but if it's Junior, he looks longingly at the whisker water and dreams of the day when he, too, will become a producer. Or, if it's the baby, he's as likely as not to drink the whisker water, which is as good a way to get rid of it as any.

Millions of whiskers, furthermore, end their brief but eventful careers as mural decorations, held in place by a foundation of shaving soap on medicine cabinet mirrors, wash bowl aprons and the wall adjacent to wash bowls.

Other millions, particularly since the introduction of electric shavers, merely sink quietly to the floor and get kicked and blown about from one place to another, till finally they end up as parts of the balls of fuzz which are found at housecleaning time in bedsprings, under carpets, in the corners of clothes closets and in the toes of old shoes which aren't being used any more.

These are the main destinies of whiskers, but there are others, too. For instance, there is at least one recorded case of a lady who was very fond of black pepper and used it on almost everything. She couldn't understand why her zest for pepper was beginning to fade; it just seemed the stuff didn't have "the old pepper any more."

So one day, she emptied the shaker's contents on a piece of paper and examined them carefully. It wasn't pepper at all, but whiskers, and she hadn't been able to enjoy the thought of the stuff since, even though her common sense told her there probably was only one kid in the world—her own—who would think of anything that devilish to do with whiskers.

Insurance annuities were not always bought with the idea of security. Investment was once their sole object. ROOSEVELT ASKS INDUSTRY, LABOR TO AID UPSWING

Pleads For Cooperation To Help Nation Move Ahead To Better Conditions

By The Associated Press.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Oct. 5. — President Roosevelt hopes that labor and industry will get together to bring about an upswing in the nation's business.

This report was given today by persons close to the White House who said Mr. Roosevelt believes that, if name-calling and bitterness is ended, the country may look forward to general economic improvement.

It was said that present economic conditions are not nearly as gloomy as they have been painted in some reports, that employment is picking up more than seasonally and that the nation may anticipate improved business during the remainder of this year provided prices are kept within a proper range.

Government policy, friends of Mr. Roosevelt said, calls for keeping prices of some commodities from going through the roof and for bolstering quotations on commodities which now are underpriced.

Copper was cited as an example of a commodity whose price should not go too high and wheat and cotton were listed as products for which current prices should be raised.

White House authorities said the recent European crisis has had its parallel in the nation's industrial and economic problems. They asserted that while Europe was engaged in saber-rattling and army mobilization, some people in this country were misrepresenting the government's policy, making dire forecasts of the future and building bogey-men to frighten the people.

These informants added the opinion that if various factions could sit in friendly conference, peace might be effected between industry and labor and between these two and the government.

As a hopeful sign in the economic picture, it was said that the administration's pump-priming program would not reach its peak results until next spring.

Mary Carlisle Inspires West Point Gridders

New Shows

STATE

Joe E. Brown, the mighty-mawed comedian, appears as a scientifically-created superman in his new comedy, "The Gladiator," opening today at the State theater.

Returning to Webster college as a sophomore, Joe soon becomes the innocent subject of a professor's experiment in increasing the normal human strength. The hilarious aftermath sees Joe become a national gridiron sensation, a record-breaking track and field athlete and the hero of every co-ed from coast to coast.

Based on the novel of the same name by Philip Wylie, "The Gladiator" features a strong supporting cast including June Travis, Robert Kent, Lucien Littlefield, Dickie Moore, Ethel Wales and the bearded behemoth, Man Mountain Dean. The film was directed by Edward Sedgwick from a screen play by Charles Melson and Arthur Sheekman.

RAIL LABOR COUNSEL RIPS HIGH PAY CLAIM

Asks Charts And Graphs Be Discarded At Hearing

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Railroad labor council questioned today as ill-founded the testimony of a witness for the railroads that the wages they pay are high in comparison with other industries.

Charles M. Hay, representing 18 brotherhoods, asked an emergency fact-finding board to discard a pile of charts and graphs offered by the carriers in an effort to justify a proposed 15 percent wage reduction.

The board was named by President Roosevelt in an attempt to forestall a strike voted by railroad men in protest against the cut.

Hay sharply cross-examined Dr. Willford King, New York university economist who prepared the wage studies for the carriers, and contended that King had failed to include thousands of part-time workers in his charts. These charts showed the average rail worker topped those in nearly every other industry in hourly and weekly wages.

King said yesterday the "shrinkage in railway income is so large as to forecast bankruptcy of the industry unless the situation is remedied."

WPA Employment Record Gains

COLUMBUS, Oct. 5—Despite the return of some Works Progress Administration laborers to the ranks of Ohio industry, the WPA state employment record continued to gain today. There were 285,040 persons on the rolls and 41,938 needy men and women were waiting assignment.

Ohio Welfare Leader Named

COLUMBUS, Oct. 5—Dr. J. F. Bateman, superintendent of the Columbus state hospital, was named by Gov. Martin L. Davey today as commissioner of the state welfare department's newly created division of mental diseases.

GERMANY

inflicted by the Czechs on the Sudetens since 1918."

As the commission resumed its discussions today the spokesman indicated progress might be difficult from this point on.

"Hitherto it was easy, as the four zones (to be occupied by the German army before Oct. 8) were already fixed at Munich and only certain technical details remained," he said.

Reparations At Issue

"The fifth zone will prove more difficult. Also there is the question of reparations for the injustices inflicted by the Czechs upon the Sudetens since 1918."

Previously an inspired source close to the foreign office indicated such reparations would be demanded of Czechoslovakia just as soon as the Sudetenland was completely in German hands.

To the Munich accord was attached a map showing the first four zones ceded by Czechoslovakia for speedy occupation by the German army. Occupation of the first three has been completed or is under way. Occupation of the fourth is to begin tomorrow, to be finished Friday. Then, the accord said:

"The remaining territory of preponderantly German character will be ascertained by the aforesaid international commission forthwith and be occupied by German troops by the 10th of October."

Hitler Seen Insistent

From Nazis in a position to know this correspondent gains the impression that Adolf Hitler will prove just as insistent and intransigent in his demand for handing over all that he claims as belonging to the fifth zone—not yet defined—as he was for the principle of annexation and the unconditional surrender of the first four zones.

The commission also is to determine the areas in which plebiscites are to determine whether they are to become German or remain Czechoslovak.

(A map published by the Berlin press indicated that the territory claimed as belonging to the fifth zone—for occupation by Oct. 10—or subject to plebiscite would be approximately twice as large as that transferred unconditionally in the four zones. Plebiscites are to be held not later than Nov. 30).

Czechs Demilitarize Territory Near Budapest

By The Associated Press.

BUDAPEST, Oct. 5.—While Hungary awaited today a Czechoslovak reply to demands for immediate territory demilitarization of a small section of Czechoslovak territory north of Budapest was under way.

In other regions, however, work on new Czechoslovak fortifications was said to be continuing, especially in a 30-mile border strip east of Bratislava. The population there was commanded to dig trenches.

Government officials said they had no definite assurance that Czechoslovakia was ready to give guarantees demanded by Hungary before Czechoslovak and Hungarian representatives could discuss details of cession of Czechoslovak territory inhabited by 800,000 Hungarians.

Reports from border sections indicated a growing tension between Czechoslovak authorities and Hungarian minority groups.

The evacuation of Czechoslovaks of four border villages in the Rima valley was semi-officially reported.

Lien Slows Owen

CLEVELAND, Oct. 5. — Uncle Sam caught up with Jesse Owens, whose flashing feet left them all in the lurch at the Olympic games, and gave him a new worry today in the form of a federal lien of $746 for back income taxes and penalties. The Negro athlete is running a cleaning shop now but revenue collector Frank Gentsch said the lien indicated a 1936 income of about $20,000.

MARKET 'PEACE' RISE CONTINUES

Hopeful Roosevelt Comment Attends Stock Advances

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5. — The "peace" upswing in stocks that began a week ago with announcement of the Munich four-power conference resumed its forward march today after a brief pause in the preceding session.

Motor, building, steel, copper and other industrial groups were the advance lines of the movement.

Outstanding among gainers registering new highs for the 1938 bull movement were Kennecott, Phelps Dodge, Du Pont, U. S. Rubber, Monsanto Chemical, Crane, Greyhound, International Telephone and Philip Morris.

Further recovery in bonds was marked by a perpendicular rise in Nickel Plate issues as the plan for extension of the maturity on the road's six percent notes was declared operative.

Most commodities sold moderately higher, including cotton.

Hopeful comment on business prospects from a source "close to President Roosevelt" attracted wide attention overnight in speculative quarters.

An advance in the price of the metal encouraged demand for copper stocks. The domestic price for the metal was boosted to 10½ cents a pound, up ½.

Revival of new corporate financing since the war scare passed was marked by public offering of $37,500,000 of Virginia Electric and Power bonds, the largest since early August.

Trade sources reported further signs of a pickup in business since the fading of acute war fears.

The "Iron Age" said two or three steel sales offices in New York following settlement of the Sudeten issue in Czechoslovakia had the largest orders for any week this year.

Widely diversified buying, the trade organ said, has sustained the steel industry in its recent climb.

Analysts noted business indicators generally should make increasingly favorable comparison with 1937 because the trend a year ago was sharply downward.

'UPSIDE DOWN GIRL' SEEKS CAREER ON STAGE

Three years ago Alyce Jane McHenry received considerable newspaper attention because of her "upside-down" stomach. She was taken to a Fall River, Mass., hospital for the operation that moved the stomach from her chest cavity to its correct position. Today, Miss McHenry, perfectly normal, has blossomed into a charming young lady and now seeks a dramatic career either on the stage or in the movies. She is shown in New York.

MAHONING STEEL RATE INCREASES 10 PERCENT

Special To The Review.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Steel ingot production stands at 55 percent in the Youngstown area, 10 percent higher than last week, the "Iron Age" summary said today.

The Pittsburgh area average was 38 percent for the third consecutive week.

The national average after a slight decline last week, gained two points for 49 percent.

The Jones and Laughlin Steel Corp. has blown in a furnace at Pittsburgh, Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp. will put in a furnace at Braddock, Pa. and the Republic Steel Corp. will start a rebuilt stack at Youngstown as pig iron production promises to follow a September gain of 16.2 percent with an added upturn this month.

September new steel sales were estimated at 15 to 20 percent higher than those of August as building construction gained, New York Central railroad orders increased and the International Harvester Co. stepped up production.

DRIVER'S HEARING SET FOR CRASHING SIGNAL

Samuel C. Miller of route 2 was to appear in municipal court today on charges of reckless driving following his arrest Tuesday by Special Officer Clyde Boso for crashing the traffic light at Maplewood.

Hearing for Matthew Andrews of route 2, also arrested by Boso Tuesday on the same charge, was continued after he told Municipal Judge Frank E. Grosshans the red light came on just as he arrived at the intersection.

Two other drivers had forfeited $7 bonds today on charges of speeding on Pennsylvania ave., last week. They were David Foden of Anderson blvd. and J. T. Anderson of Midland.

PROFESSOR AT MIAMI WRITES SWING TUNES

By The United Press.

OXFORD, O.—A professor who really "swings it" is Royce H. Hubin, newly appointed graduate assistant in the German department of Miami university.

During the past year he composed more than eight swing tunes. One of them, "One Heavenly Hour Tonight," was recently published by an English firm.

Hubin, a member of Phi Beta Kappi, national honorary fraternity, worked his way through the University of Wisconsin serving as a bellhop during the day and playing a piano in his brother's orchestra at night.

ALLEN'S NOMINATION UPHELD BY TRIBUNAL

State Supreme Court Acts On Lorain Ordinance

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 5. — The state supreme court upheld today the nomination of G. K. Allen of Cleveland as a Republican candidate for the short term position on the supreme court.

Allen's nomination was contested by Frank H. Ward of Columbus, the runner-up in the August primary, on the ground that use of voting machines in Trumbull county had prevented rotation of names on the ballot.

Ward contended that had names been rotated he would have carried Trumbull county and won the nomination.

Conviction of Mary Jane See and Edna Marcum of Sciotoville, on charges of disturbing the peace growing out of a family quarrel, was upheld today by the court when it dismissed their application for a review and dismissed their appeals as of right.

The Portsmouth municipal court had fined each $50 and costs and given them 30-day suspended jail sentences.

Refusing a review, the court upheld an ordinance of the city of Lorain limiting any one company's gasoline storage within the city limits to 6,000 gallons in 1,000 gallon tanks.

The court upheld the Lorain county courts in ruling that George A. and Ethel D. Enos and Edwin W. Davis alone, were liable for a $61,000 mortgage held by the Union Trust Co.

CHINESE BASE YIELDS BEFORE FURIOUS DRIVE

By The Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 5.—Japanese followed up a 12-mile advance today with a furious attack by which they occupied Loki, 38 miles southwest of Juichang.

Japanese claimed the maneuver turned the left flank of the Chinese line defending bitterly-contested Telan. Chinese said they defeated Japanese attempting to push through Tapieh mountains on the north bank of the Yangtze, northwest of Hankow.

A Japanese communique said invading planes bombed Liangshan, in eastern Scechwan province, and destroyed nine grounded Chinese planes, afterwards engaging in an air battle with 20 Chinese planes, seven of which were shot down.

In nearby Chungking, the statement said, three Chinese planes and two hangars were destroyed.

LOCAL MAN ARRESTED FOR LICENSE NEGLECT

The first arrest in Columbiana county for failure to take out a 1939 driver's license occurred Tuesday night when Patrolman James White of the Salem highway patrol substation arrested Herman Dimmerling of Anderson blvd., East Liverpool, at Negley.

Highway police are halting motorists at random and requesting to see their licenses. Dimmerling, a nurseryman, said he neglected to obtain his license. He was taken before Justice of the Peace W. H. Hannum in Negley where he was fined $5 and costs and ordered to apply for a license immediately.

County WPA Rolls Rise

LISBON, Oct. 5.—Addition of 150 men to countywide projects today boosted Columbiana county's total WPA rolls to 3,150, an alltime high for work-relief, H. A. Moore, WPA agent, said most of the new men were assigned to the Center township road work.

Sugar Beet Strike Threatened

FREMONT, O., Oct. 5—Sheriffs of seven northwestern Ohio counties made ready today to protect sugar beet harvesters desiring to remain at work in the event a CIO-affiliated union called a strike among field workers at midnight tomorrow.

CZECHS IN U.S. PROTEST TO PARTITION IN VAIN

ORDER ON VOTE RULING FORWARDED BY COURT

The Columbiana county election board today awaited official order from the state supreme court to place the names of Robert Wheatley of Salineville, Democrat, and Charles Snyder of Salem, Republican, nominees for county engineer, on the November ballot.

The court said today in Columbus the formal order has been forwarded.

F. R. O'Hanlon, clerk of the board, announced he would give instructions for printing of the ballots with the nominees names as soon as he was served.

William B. Moore, attorney for Lloyd C. Kirk, present engineer, said he had received notification.

A writ of mandamus issued by Common Pleas Judge W. F. Lones had enjoined the board from placing the nominees' names on the ballot following a plea by Kirk that his term ran to 1940.

STATE DAIRYMEN TEST FOR COWS INCREASING

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O. — C. L. Blackman, animal husbandry specialist at Ohio state university, reports that Ohio dairymen are testing more cattle for milk and butterfat production than at any time in the past 12 years.

The 17,464 cows tested last month were nearly 50 percent more than those tested in a similar period in 1928-29, when economic conditions were considered more favorable, he said.

250-Year-Old Tulip Tree

NEW YORK—Old age got the best of a rare giant tulip tree which for 250 years lived in nearby Inwood park and saw the forest around it give way to the world's largest city. Officials of the department of parks said the tree, 80 feet in height, became tottery with age, endangering passersby, so they ordered it cut down. The explained it was a rare specimen because most tulip trees do not live beyond 100 years.

BRITAIN STRIVES FOR RELEASE OF CZECH HOSTAGES

Seeks Freedom Of Resident Officials Jailed By Nazis; Policy Election Seen

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Prime Minister Chamberlain told the house of commons today Britain was seeking the release of "certain Czech officials in frontier districts" and Czech residents in Germany who had been imprisoned in Germany as "hostages."

Opening the third day of commons debate on his four-power accord of Munich for the cession of Czechoslovakia's Sudetenland to the reich, Chamberlain said the government had received reports such officials and residents were held during the occupation of ceded territory.

He said the government was unable to estimate the number involved but had instructed the British representative on the international commission supervising the cession "to press for the release of any such hostages as soon as possible."

Cites Commission's Duty

The prime minister added it was the duty of the international commission established under the Munich agreement to interpret what constituted "installation" — which the Czechs were forbidden to remove or damage—and what property the Czechs would be entitled to take when retiring from occupied territory.

The debate, which already has gone through two days of spirited government defense of, and bitter opposition attacks on, the Munich accord, was not expected to reach a vote until tomorrow afternoon.

Meanwhile growing dissatisfaction with the Munich pact in the ranks of Chamberlain's own conservative party confronted him with one of the thorniest internal political problems any prime minister has faced since the wartime coalition government collapsed in 1922.

Nevertheless Chamberlain and his advisers began an unofficial canvass to determine likely strength should a general election be called to pass on the government's international policy, including the Munich agreement to give Czechoslovak Sudetenland to Germany.

Seeks To Determine Sentiment

As parliament went into the third day of foreign affairs debate, the Chamberlain group endeavored to decide whether an election would favor the national government, dominated by the conservative party, or the opposition, controlled by labor.

Neither the government nor the opposition had made up its mind to ask a general election, which politicians assert unsettles business.

Most government supporters contended the conservatives could sweep the country today, on the strength of Chamberlain's popularity for having averted war danger, but they feared the sentiment might change later.

Others insisted that a definite British-Italian agreement over Spain, with a possible ending of the Spanish civil war, and a new and formal peace pact with Germany would clinch conservative victory and insure lasting peace.

Both Sides Watch Debate

Both sides closely watched the foreign affairs debate, eagerly anticipating a lineup of parties when the final house of commons count is taken tomorrow, last day of the current emergency session.

Nose counting right now indicated an impressive vote of confidence for Chamberlain.

It was said in reliable quarters that some 40 conservatives, forming the Eden-Churchill bloc, had tipped labor leaders they would vote for labor against Chamberlain's confidence motion if the proposed labor amendment did not mention Soviet Russia and did not constitute a demand for censure of the government.

Meanwhile, informed sources said "some preliminary progress" had been made in talks between the Earl of Perth, British ambassador to Rome, and Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister. These talks were described as related to "Italian participation in the Spanish conflict."

Newest British Train, 'Scarlet Pimpernel,' Capable Of 80 Miles An Hour And Burns Oil

Latest Streamline Addition To England Rolling Stock Has Articulated Connection For Coaches

By The United Press.

LONDON — The "Scarlet Pimpernel," capable of 80 miles an hour, is Britain's latest streamline train.

This 73-ton gleaming red and aluminum train has been built at the London, Midland & Scottish Railway works at Derby and soon will be put into experimental service between Oxford and Cambridge.

Made up of three cars and a locomotive with six 6-cylinder oil engines each developing 125 horsepower at 2,200 revolutions per minute, the "Scarlet Pimpernel" is said to be the fastest Diesel-engined train on the British railroads.

It is 185 feet long and the three cars are built on the articulated system which enables eight wheels to be saved, as the middle car shares the inner bodies of the two end cars. There is accommodation for 162 passengers, who are provided with reversible seats, as the cars are of the saloon type.

There are several novel features in this lightweight train.

As the locomotive speeds along the track, the driver can carry on a telephone conversation with the guard.

All six engines are simultaneously controlled from either end of the train by electro-pneumatic equipment.

A "dead man's pedal", pressed by the drivers, applies powerful compressed air as soon as released, as well as reducing the speed of the engines.

The guard controls the air-operated sliding doors, in much the same way as guards on the London underground system.

The waste gases from the Diesel engines are used for the interior heating of the cars, which are insulated against noise.

MISS AMERICA WANTS DAUGHTER IN MOVIES

By The United Press.

McKEESPORT, Pa.—Three years ago Henrietta Leaver was acclaimed as the most beautiful girl in the nation. She had won the title, "Miss America," and as such was in a favorable position to launch a successful professional career.

But she didn't.

Instead, Miss Leaver got married. She submerged her desire to stay in the spotlight by becoming the wife of John Mustacchio, a McKeesport restaurant proprietor.

Today, the former "Miss America" is the mother of a 22-month-old baby girl—Patricia Lee Mustacchio—who promises to grow up to be as beautiful as her mother.

Mrs. Mustacchio already is making plans for the future of her baby—plans she hopes will be climaxed in a successful movie career.

Because she believes that talent as well as beauty is necessary for a successful career, the 1935 Miss America is seeing that Patricia Lee gets instructions in singing and dancing.

When the child is five years old, Mrs. Mustacchio will take her to Hollywood for the acid test.

"We'll buy a round trip ticket," the mother says, "but I don't think we'll use the return half."

Buys Railroad For Self

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—Roy Rawlings, former speaker of the Rhode Island house of representatives, purchased for $301 from the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, a railroad five and one-half miles long to use in his grain business. The railroad operates between Hope valley and Wood River and the passenger equipment of a gasoline engine and a caboose makes four round trips weekly.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 25 cents. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

HOPE FOR LABOR PEACE EXPLODED

Green Stand Spells Doom Of New A.F.L.-CIO Talks

By The Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 5—American Federation of Labor leaders, well informed sorces said today, may reply indirectly to President Roosevelt's appeal for labor peace by disapproving a resolution calling on the 58th annual convention to order reopening of the unity conference with John L. Lewis' CIO.

The resolution, submitted by delegates from the Hotel and Restaurant Employes International Alliance, demanded that peace negotiations broken off last December be renewed immediately.

Green Kills Last Hope

It also asked that the A. F. of L. recognize Lewis' policy of industrial unionism.

Any possibility that the resolutions committee might approve the resolution was virtually exploded yesterday by William Green. The federation's president told newspapermen:

"Overtures for a peace conference should and ought to come from the CIO. There is no immediate prospect for peace and nothing for us to do but wait."

Green's comment was prompted by a message to the convention from Mr. Roosevelt in which he expessed hope the door to peace would be left open.

Asks Definite Proposal

"I don't consider the suggestion by the President as indicating a disposition on his part to interfere," Green said. "But if the President would submit a definite proposal I would place it before the executive council at once."

Green said he doubted the questions involved in the three-year-old controversy were susceptible to mediation efforts from any quarter.

Convention leaders formally filed the President's letter in the convention record and led the delegates back to the job of grinding out federation policies on some of the new deal agencies.

Marry-Go-Round

By MARY ROWLAND

These Modern Eves

YOU can be sure that a man is falling in love with you, if he actually likes the way you look with your hair pulled up from your ears and one of these preposterous little hats dipped over one eye. It's the supreme test!

Some married couples believe in taking their vacation separately; but separating a happily married pair is like separating an egg. And you know what happened to Humpty Dumpty.

If a husband and wife can enjoy their playtimes apart more than they can enjoy themselves together, then they are not really married—they are only legally tied.

Before marriage, a man calls a girl's solicitude mothering him; after mariage he calls it fussing over him; but if she ever stopped it, he'd call it neglecting him.

In the bright lexicon of love there is no such word as "perhaps;" there is only one word — and that is either "yes" or "no!"

All women have a weakness for wavy hair on a man's head. One reason why Samson finally let Delilah cut off his hair was probably because he was tired of having her run her fingers through it.

Nobody knows why — but most men like their women, as they like their melons, sweet, but slightly frosted.

When a woman gives a man up, it leaves a terrible void in her life; but when a man gives a woman up, it is usually because some other woman has crowded her out.

In her ability to find glamor in a man's casual love-making, the average girl is not only a romancer but a necromancer.

"I'm so grateful for what Siler City School taught me about COLDS"

Says Mrs. J. B. WHITLEY

"Every winter Margaret used to come down with one cold after another," Mrs. Whitley says. "Then the clinic started at her school. Soon she was catching fewer colds, and getting over them quicker. It certainly opened my eyes. Since then our whole family has followed Vicks Plan—and colds don't worry us now like they used to."

17,353 VOLUNTEERS

Take Part In Great Colds-Clinic

Over 7,000 School Children Do Their Part

DURING four winter periods, a modern crusade against colds was waged in schools, factories, homes. Here's what happened:

Both the number and length of colds were drastically reduced . . . Sickness from colds was cut more than half (50.88%) . . . School absences due to colds were reduced even more (57.86%)!

These are actual figures—the average results of the four winter series of clinical tests in which 17,353 people (including 7,031 school children) took part. Thirty-seven doctors were on the supervisory staff. Over 500 teachers, nurses, and other trained workers assisted them.

A SIMPLE GUIDE. This great clinic proved the worth of Vicks Plan. Vicks Plan is a simple guide which emphasizes the importance of proper personal care and the use of two specialized medications—Vicks Va-tro-nol and Vicks VapoRub—for relief of symptoms in different types and stages of colds.

When colds threatened—at the first nasal irritation, sniffle, or sneeze—Va-tro-nol was used to help prevent the development of many colds. When a cold got by all precautions, its discomforts were relieved with VapoRub.

The results speak for themselves. Vicks Plan may do less for you—or it may do even more. But with such a record it certainly is worth a trial. It is simple and easy to follow in any home. You get the full directions in each package of Va-tro-nol or VapoRub.

HERE'S MARGARET WHITLEY with her mother (above) and (below) at her desk in the Siler City (N. C.) School. The benefits Margaret received from taking part in the clinical tests in this school made her mother an enthusiastic follower of Vicks Plan.

Helps PREVENT COLDS

Va-tro-nol is specialized medication—expressly designed for the nose and upper throat, where most colds start. You feel this tingling, stimulating medication go right to work. Used at the first sniffle or sneeze—a few drops up each nostril—it helps to prevent many colds from developing. Keep it handy and use it early.

VICKS VA-TRO-NOL

RELIEVES misery of COLDS

VapoRub is a family standby for relieving misery of colds. Rubbed on throat, chest, and back, VapoRub acts two ways at once: (1) Direct through the skin like a poultice; (2) Direct on irritated air-passages with its medicated vapors. This double action loosens phlegm, clears air-passages, eases cough, relieves local congestion.

Changes In Air Pressure Often Cause Distress

Respiration, Related Body Functions Affected By High Altitude

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

RESPIRATION may be affected in an abnormal way simply by a change in the pressure or amount of air about us.

When I was discussing the digestive system last week, I spoke of the nice way it had adapted itself through the centuries and eons to the foods that the earth produces. Its digestive juices reduce those, but we might starve if we went to Mars because our digestions would be utterly unfit to cope with the strange foods—fruits, vegetables or flesh—or things beyond our imagination on which the Martians subsist. In fact, I know a young lady who almost starved when she went to an island in the East Indies, and for almost the same reason. She couldn't get used to grasshoppers and such as table delicacies.

In the same way, we have grown accustomed to the sea of air in which we live. There is a certain concentration to it and we breathe it in and out at that concentration with complete ease. When it changes, we are in more or less distress.

At High Altitude

I am writing this at a level of over 7,000 feet above sea level. And I am distinctly conscious of my breathing. Some of my fellow travelers, who are younger than I am, profess to feel no discomfort whatever.

If we were to go any higher, I am sure I should have all the symptoms of mountain sickness—dizziness, dimness of vision, partial deafness, muscular weakness and inco-ordination, etc. These symptoms are all recognized as consequences of high mountain climbing. The mountaineer must get acclimatized to them.

This acclimatization is an example of nature's manifold resources in adaptation. After several days in a very high altitude, the rate and depth of the breathing automatically increase. When this happens—when you voluntarily, even at ordinary altitudes, increase your breathing for any length of time—the alkalinity of the blood increases. And this automatically allows the blood to carry more oxygen to the tissues.

In acclimatization, the need of the tissues also some way decreases. The blood cells also increase in number—about a third more—which allows for more carriers of oxygen.

The whole process is one of the astonishing examples of the ability of the body to meet new conditions.

When the density of the air is increased, we have another set of symptoms which is known as "caisson disease." And these symptoms do not come on during exposure to the increased pressure, but only when the pressure is released afterwards. For this the body provides no acclimatization. The symptoms consist in muscular and joint pains, vertigo, hemorrhages under the skin and pains in the abdomen. When the body is examined after death, hemorrhages are found in all the organs. This is not due to the sudden release in pressure which drives the blood out of the vessels. Most interesting studies have shown that the explanation is that when the body is under pressure, the tissue fluids dissolve a large amount of gases. This is in obedience to the law of solution of a gas in a fluid. When the pressure is released, the bubbles of the gas are thrown out into the tissues. It is like a pop bottle when the cap is taken off. Such is the explanation of caisson disease.

DON'T MARRY THE MAN

By Jeanne Bowman

The Characters

Kathleen Gregory: young, red-haired member of the Gregory clan which owns The Golden Girl mine, traveling west incognito.

Bridget Riley: her companion.

Donald MacDonald: owner of The Stubborn Boy mine, hates the Gregorys, Kathleen especially.

Yesterday: Outside the town of Neutrality Kathleen meets MacDonald for the first time and immediately quarrels, with him.

CHAPTER SIX
Neutrality

"SO YOU can't take it," observed Bridget, then she started to laugh.

"I don't know what you're laughing at," spat Kathleen.

"Just remembering a remark of yours. All you'd need would be propinquity. If you two had been any nearer there'd been a combustion they'd have heard in Spain."

Kathleen relaxed and laughed with her. "I might as well give up," she said ruefully. "I haven't a chance now."

"Hmm," mused Bridget. "Vapid flapper. Well, maybe you're right. However, it would be too bad, you've made such an excellent beginning."

"Excellent," echoed Kathleen.

"Umhuhm. If MacDonald ever has a suspicion that you came out to vamp a right-of-way from him, he'll smother it. He'll know you would never have started with a verbal club."

Kathleen made no comment. They had topped a sharp rise and Neutrality lay below. Neutrality consisted of a single street, straight at one end, at the other curving into the distance.

The straight end was evidently the business thoroughfare, one side at least. The left side was brightly lighted. Colored signs whirled before plate glass windows. A queue of people waited before the entrance of a motion picture theater.

The lights on the right side were few and far between. The shops looked drowsy, ill kept. Even the pavement was full of holes.

Bridget, who had been reading signs burst out with a sudden, "Cleo, do you realize everything on the left side is MacDonald and on the right, Gregory? Look at the signs."

Kathleen groaned. She had been looking at signs; hotel signs. The MacDonald had a tiled front, yellow lights and the windows of the grill room were steamy with the promise of warm food.

The Gregory boasted only a blue globe above the entrance, a dim lobby beyond. A lunch counter with high stools opened onto it.

Resolutely, Kathleen pulled up before the curb. Bridget followed her into the lobby, across a linoleum covered floor, where a shirt-sleeved proprietor leaned across the desk, resignation in his eyes.

"Two rooms with a connecting bath" ordered Kathleen.

"Sorry, ma'am, but there ain't but one tub in the house and I don't know as you could get to it, tonight."

"Does the MacDonald have more than one tub?" she demanded.

"Well, if you want to be known as one of them stiffnecks, it ain't no business of mine. Folks who come to Neutrality have to be one or the other. Can't straddle fences in these parts."

He closed the register and sat back, mouth pleated into lines of displeasure.

"You mean a person has to be a MacDonald or Gregory? What do th commercial men do?"

"They stay on the side of the street they're sellin'. No Gregory would buy from a firm sellin' the MacDonalds."

"Would you mind telling me why they call this Neutrality?" begged Kathleen.

Achingly Tired

"Well, ma'am, it was this way. MacDonald and Old Angus Gregory lived in a cabin up the hill. When they had their fight neither would give up to the other, so they divided that cabin in two and run their road down the hill, side of each other. Then when the miners started comin' in, they took to buildin' along side of the road they was representin'. Then come the women folks. They didn't have many bonnets in those days and they got so all fired tired of havin' holes shot in 'em, while the MacDonald and Gregory miners were afightin', that they marked off a portion where they could shop in peace and quiet. They called it the neutral zone and that's how the town got its name."

Kathleen's eyes had been growing larger and brighter as the man talked. Why hadn't her people told her fascinating tales like these?

"What started the feud?" she asked, eagerly.

"Well, now, ma'am, don't know as I could say. Don't think I ever heard tell. It's fair to say 'twas some dastardly deed of a MacDonald."

Kathleen sighed wearily. Romance had died and she was cold and hungry and wanted a bath. Never in all of her years had she felt as grimy, as achingly tired.

"To be loyal, or to be clean, that is the question."

"Looks like you could do with a bath," confessed the proprietor as though ashamed of being a traitor.

Kathleen, at first indignant, laughed suddenly. "Then we'd better try the other hotel, and please explain to the Gregorys we'll patronize their hostelry when they indulge in some plumbing."

"Twon't do a mite of good," sighed the man. "Not that they aren't the finest people in the world; my father worked for them before me, but they . . . well things didn't look so bad when Old Angus was livin' and before young Donald took charge and started building a new MacDonald side."

Back at the wheel of the car, Kathleen looked at Bridget. "And to think I'm part owner of that wreck," she said in disgust.

The MacDonald was clean, it was bright, it was warm and it was modern. A uniformed bellboy was at the curb by the time they had stopped. Before they could ask, he had assured them a garage man would call for their car immediately, as the storm would strike any moment.

The clerk was young and affable. The suites were all occupied. "Would a room with twin beds suffice?"

"With an adjoining bath, a haymow would suffice," Kathleen informed him fervently.

The room did not resemble a haymow. After the sketchy tourists cabins they had found along the way, it semed luxurious. Forgetting her role, Kathleen tipped the bellhop as though he were responsible for its comfort, then, laying her purse on a dresser, uttered a shrill laugh. Like the horn of the MacDonald car, the laugh grew in intensity until it verged on hysteria.

Catamount In Person

Alarmed, Bridget whirled Kathleen away from the mirror. "What are you laughing at?"

"I . . . I just learned what a catamount looked like," confessed Kathleen, and as Bridget hurried away to draw the hot tub she hoped would quell hysterics, Kathleen did not add, "So much for my dreams of blinding him with my beauty at first sight."

Half an hour later, enveloped in a camel's-hair robe the shade of her hair; that hair curled in tiny ringlets by the steam, her cheeks pink, she curled up on the bed to relax in sensuous pleasure.

The storm had struck. She had spent a few moments at the window watching the pyrotechnical display of weird blue lights which revealed mountains towering above them, and now was conscious of rain flaying the windows and of the radiator purring a soothing refrain.

She smiled a little at her observance of such trivial things. Never had she been as keenly aware of physical well being. Chilled and bone weary, the room and the bed warmed and cradled her. Dinner had been ordered served in the room and she was hungry as she had never been hungry before.

And she had become vitally interested in the town of Neutrality. Her grandfather had become something more than a beard and a bellowing voice. She'd seen him only once, his last visit east when she was seven. He had lived at the mine and marveled at his son's preference of the east. He had even regretted sending young Angus east to school for he had never returned save for one visit.

She must learn more about the early days, about the finding of the gold . . . about the feud . . .

She thought then of Donald MacDonald. Did one inherit hatreds? She had hated the man before she knew his identity and he certainly bore no love for her. He had been charming to Bridget.

Kathleen's eyes were narrowed. Here was a challenge. A man who not only ignored, but openly insulted her must be reduced to his proper place. And it was this Donald MacDonald who had built this hotel was it? Well, she'd build one across the street that would make this one look like a hovel.

When Bridget came in from her bath, Kathleen was at the desk.

"Wiring for a rescue crew?" she asked lightly.

"No," murmured Kathleen. "I'm drawing plans for a new Gregory House. It's going to be a honey."

A look of pride and tenderness came into the eyes of the Irish girl, but there was only flippancy in her voice. "Two baths to every room?"

"And a free-for-all shower in the foyer," supplemented Kathleen. "Do I hear the rattle of dishes?"

There was a busboy at the door, a waitress behind him. Kathleen looked up to find pale blue eyes focused on her in wide admiration; the tray in the uplifted hand slanting at a perilous angle.

ZANESVILLE ROTARAN TALKS TO LOCAL CLUB

Personnel Standard Lauded By Visiting Speaker

The high standard of Rotary personnel was praised and necessity of unbroken attendance was stressed by Clyde Calhoun, president of the Zanesville Rotary club, before the local club Tuesday noon.

Mr. Calhoun gave an account of his trip to the international convention in San Francisco last June, which he and three other members of his club made by automobile.

"I have been a member of many service clubs in many towns," he said, "but in none have I met the high quality of men you find in Rotary, and this was brought home to me especially at the convention. There you could meet men from other cities and other countries and talk to them as friends about their home and work."

The speaker attributed this high standard of membership to the method by which men were taken in, first by having the membership committee investigate them and then by vote of the whole club.

He painted out that the classification was only loaned to members, and that if they did not live up to it, it was the club's privilege to give it to someone else.

Sundown Stories

By Mary GRAHAM BONNER

Volunteer Puddle Muddlers

THE volunteer firemen were at the fire now. The family had gone to bed but hearing the strange sounds from the Puddle Muddlers they had awakened at once and had escaped in plenty of time.

Now the hose was being played on the last of the flames and the family and thier friends knew that the danger was over. They had nothing to worry about.

"We have to keep on with the water in case flames start up again," said the volunteer fire chief, "but we've got the fire in hand. In fact I don't believe there'll be much damage."

Now that the excitement was over the family looked about and saw the dim figures of the Puddle Muddlers.

"Are they animals from a circus?" one of the members of the family asked.

"No," said Willy Nilly, stepping forward. "They are my Puddle Muddlers."

The people looked as though they were dreaming—maybe hearing things.

First they had been aroused suddenly, then they had known that their house was on fire, then the fire department had arrived — in fact it had arrived so quickly that no damage had been done.

And now they saw the strangest collection of animals before them — the animals whose voices had aroused them, and a little gnome-like man with a short body and rather long legs, wearing side-whiskers and with sticking-out ears and a tiny nose was saying something about "Puddle Muddlers."

He was still talking. He was calling them volunteer Puddle Muddlers.

"Yes," he said, "we're always willing to fight a fire, and at home we call Mr. Quacko Duck our fire chief."

The people looked at Mr. Quacko as he stuck out his chest, and quacked at the top of his duck voice.

Tomorrow—"Surprises."

Elevator Operator Finds Weather Main Topic

ONCE upon a time a 10-year-old kid took care of a cow owned by Jerry Simms, founder of The Morning Tribune, and found it his lot to walk the cow from Second st. to the top of Deidrick's hill to pasture.

The lad often found it a long, slow grade to the hilltop, and when he arrived on the crest he would flop down in the grass and daydream, particularly about a way to get to the top without so much work, an elevator for instance.

The boy grow older and wiser, but his dream never grew dim. His cow won first prize in the county fair, and he was promoted to newsboy by Mr. Simms. He delivered milk and he delivered mail. He worked in a 5 and 10-cent store and behind a grocery counter, and toiled in a pottery.

It was not until 1923, however, that Clarence (Buddy) Robinson realized his dream. He went to work in the Little building as elevator boy and he has remained there ever since.

Buddy has probably the smallest office in town, and the most customers. Last Saturday, for example, he saw approximately 1,500 persons step in and out of the elevator as he made 450 round trips.

Buddy has a busy day. He starts off by lighting the fire in the building at 7 a. m. and delivering ice cakes to tenants who own water coolers. He distributes mail three times daily to each of 34 tenants. Doctors, dentists beauty operators and businessmen in the building have to have errands run and deliveries made occasionally, too.

But Buddy gets a lift during the day. Frank Little, owner of the building, takes over the controls when Buddy is off on an errand, and Clarence Wolf is another operator.

The common topic of conversation with riders in the elevator is, of course, the weather—almost every passenger has an observation to make on just what kind of a day it is.

While he finds his work interesting, Buddy doesn't believe in motorman's holidays. You won't find him riding in an elevator after hours. He prefers the movies — watching someone go up or down in the world.

The Sunlit Road

By TOM T. JONES

BEFORE 1846, five townships now in Mahoning county were part of Columbiana county. These townships which border the present northerly line of Columbiana county, are Beaver, Goshen, Green, Smith and Springfield townships.

Springfield township was formed in 1803. At present it has three villages, Petersburg, New Springfield and New Middleton. Petersburg is the largest of these villages with 613 persons. New Springfield is next with 408 and New Middleton is the smallest with 205.

One of the early settlers in Springfield township was Peter Musser who came from York county, Pa. in 1801. He erected a mill near the present village of Petersburg which he operated until his death in 1808.

He was the father of four sons and four daughters. His oldest son, John, carried on his father's mill for a while and then moved to Missouri. His second son laid out the village of Petersburg which was known as Musser's mill but later changed to Petersburg. John Musser was appointed postmaster in 1811.

Jacob Musser, third son, was the town's first merchant. He served in the 1812 war with England and later joined the regular army. In Petersburg was the Lochiel house, a hotel of which George S. Veon was the proprietor. Dr. John McCook was one of the early physicians. He later moved to Steubenville and then to Washington where he died.

New Springfield was founded in 1825 by Abraham Christ who platted 28 lots. Thomas Knight built a store in the square which he conducted for 20 years.

New Middleton also was founded in 1825. In it was a factory in which linseed oil was made for a time. The building was later destroyed by fire. Homes in the village are well kept and its residents lead a happy and contented life.

CUBS SURE THEY'LL UPSET YANKEE APPLE CART AS SERIES OPENS

Ruffing Hurls Against Lee In First Contest

New York Sluggers 'Cocky;' Certain They'll Win

BY GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO, Oct. 5—Unaccustomed as they are to winning a World Series, the Chicago Cubs go into their battle against the wonder Yankees today with bounding hopes and a strong hunch that they are going to upset the apple cart.

There is nothing very sensible about their dream. The Yankees look just as tough as they ever did and you can't imagine how lethal they look when Red Ruffing is pitching and swinging his bludgeon in ninth position. That particular lineup gives the Yankees nine hitters, any one of whom can, and do, break up ball games.

Odds 12 To 5 Against Cubs

But that is how the Cubs feel about it. They know that the posted odds are 12 to 5 against their chances and that the consensus of the experts is that the Yankees will cop their third straight world championship in five games, winding up the series in New York next Monday night.

Yet the Cubs go into today's tussle thinking they are going to win. They have an abounding confidence in the pitching of Bill Lee, who faces Ruffing in the first game, and they think they are a "team of destiny," or something. At that, there is something mystical about the fact that Gen. Lee, a big fellow from the banjo belt, is taking another whack at the Yankees.

A capacity crowd of, loosely, 44,000, was assured for today's game, and that of tomorrow. Wrigley Field, one of the prettiest emporiums in baseball, with its red brick wall circling the outfield, was a sellout last night. Speculators were demanding up to $75 for a set of single seats to the three games that will be played here if the series goes six games and the more hardy bleacher fans were in line at noon yesterday.

Yankees Cocky As Ever

The Yankees, cocky as ever, think they will knock over the Cubs in four straight games. They are, if anything, a trifle too confident. They clinched the American league pennant some three weeks before the campaign ended and they haven't played good ball since. They didn't look very good in their practice yesterday.

Everybody is agreed that the Cubs are sunk without a ripple if Lee fails them today. Lee has won 22 games this year. He has pitched nine shutouts, more than have been pitched by any other two elbowers in the big leagues. He pitched three innings against the American leaguers in the all-star game at Cincinnati and allowed only one fluke hit.

Lee is a fast-ball pitcher, with a sharp curve that he keeps low and outside. That is supposed to be the only effective pitching against the sluggers of the Yankee batting order. If Lee stops them, then the Cubs have a chance, because the setup will permit him to pitch three games in the series.

Lefty Gomez is set to pitch the second for the Yankees and Monte Pearson the third. The Cubs can reply with Clay Bryant and Dizzy Dean, which is strictly no argument if Lee comes a cropper.

Gabby Determined To Play

Gabby Hartnett, catcher-manager of the Cubs, is determined to play in the series, though he is suffering with a couple of damaged fingers on his right hand. His bat is an important factor in the Cubs' attack.

The games here will be broadcast, but not by Charley Grimm, former manager of the Bruins, who has since become one of the sweetest voices on the air. Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis forbade it, on the ground that Charley might be partial to his old club. The commissioner must have made his decision before he heard that the Cubs had cut Grimm off without a cent of the World Series swag.

The announced lineups for the opener were:

YANKEES	CHICAGO
Crosetti, ss	Hack, 3b
Rolfe, 3b	Herman, 2b
Henrich, rf	Demaree, lf
DiMaggio, cf	Cavarretta, rf

'DOC' SPEARS PREPS TOLEDO HARD WAY FOR BISHOP BATTLE

By The Associated Press

THEY'RE preparing for Ohio Wesleyan's Bishops' the hard way at the University of Toledo.

Coach "Doc" Spears is polishing the Rockets' attack by means of long scrimmage sessions. A squad of doughty freshmen, employing Wesleyan's style of defense is taking it "on the chin" that Toledo may hand the so-far hapless Bishops another drubbing. Marshall crushed Wesleyan under a 62 to 0 count last week.

Bobcats Seek Third Straight

Coach Don Peden of Ohio university says he is pinning his hopes for victory in the Western Reserve battle on Johnny Montgomery's forward passes and Len Janiak's powerful line plunges. The Bobcats will be after their third consecutive victory.

Guards Ray Chenek and Clarence Claugus returned to the lineup yesterday after recovering from leg injuries received last Saturday in the Xavier contest.

At Cleveland, Case's prospects for a victory over Lehigh Saturday suffered a blow with the announcement that tackle Tony Dull was ineligible—study trouble.

Last week Ray Ride shifted John Vanas from center to tackle, but he figured Tony would be back for the Lehigh game Saturday.

He already had lost Bob Michael, sophomore, who brok his finger in the first scrimmage of the year. Michael won't be ready for another week or so.

Ride Patches Up Lineup

Sam Greenwood, Cleveland Heights halfback, has a sprained ankle. Bill Schweitzer turned an ankle against Findlay last week.

So Ride patched up his lineup and ordered a scrimmage against the freshmen.

Well, maybe the first-year men are pretty good. It's no secret that the varsity didn't exactly resemble world beaters.

The work of stocky Frank Smith, who showed up well at right guard in last week's Indiana game, received considerable attention today as Ohio State's football regulars perspired through a long defensive drill against Southern California power plays.

A hot sun made the going difficult as Coach Francis Schmidt sought out starters for the intersectional battle here Saturday.

Pass plays also were polished up as Backs Jimmy Sexton and Don Scott kept Ends Esco Sarkinen, Sam Bartschy, Stu Whitehead and Keith Bliss on the run snagging heaves.

Hardiest Bleacherite Of All? Milwaukee Fan In Line 7 Days

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—The bleacherites are the hardiest of all baseball fans and the peer of them all at the moment is Arthur "Happy" Felsch of Milwaukee.

He made plans to attend the World Series at Wrigley Field while a lot of people were looking over the seating arrangements at Forbes Field, home of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

At dawn today on the first day of the Cubs-Yankees argument the 31-year-old Felsch was first in line for a $1.10 bleacher ticket. No one challenged his right to the place. A fellow who camps in front of a ticket booth for seven days and nights is entitled to some consideration.

Old Stuff For 'Happy'

It was old stuff for Felsch. He's been the No. 1 waiter at the last three World Series played at Wrigley Field.

"I hope the Cubs win," said Felsch, reclining on an army cot, "but I think the Yanks will take 'em."

"Boo," responded a few hundred among the thousands who came to watch the bleacherite encampment last night.

Charley Grimm, deposed manager of the Chicago Cubs late in July, is passing up the 1938 World Series opener.

The former Cub leader, now a radio sports announcer, said on his arrival from St. Louis yesterday he didn't plan to watch the Cubs and Yankees.

Landis Bars Grimm

"I just can't enjoy any game where I don't have anything to do," he said.

Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis barred Grimm from broadcasting the series on the ground he might be partial to his former mates.

Grimm declared he was "not sore" because the Cubs failed to vote him a share of the series spoils.

"Frankly," he said, "I never expected to be cut in. They won that pennant for Gabby Hartnett and I had nothing to do with it. I don't believe a former manager is entitled to any dough."

'DOC' PROTHRO SIGNS TO MANAGE PHILLIES

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5. — A dentist turned baseball manager will try to drill the lowly Phillies into pennant contenders during the next two years.

He is Dr. James Thompson (Doc) Prothro of Memphis. He was signed to a two-year contract yesterday by Gerald Nugent, president of the Philadelphia National league club.

Prothro, former manager of Little Rock of the Southern association, succeeds Jimmy Wilson who resigned last Saturday after being at the Phillies' helm since 1934 when he replaced Burt Shotton.

Prothro practiced dentistry in 1921 and 1922 after a trial in the majors with the Washington Senators, then returned to baseball and has been associated with it ever since. The last nine years were spent in the role of manager, all in the Southern association, five years with Memphis and the last four with Little Rock. He won one championship at the helm of each club.

His first full season in the majors came with the Boston Red Sox in 1925 after being traded by Washington. He played third base and batted .319 for the year.

The salary stipulated in his contract was not revealed.

Changes In Key Positions Help Fast Comebacks On Gridiron

By DREW MIDDLETON
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—They come back quicker in football; a halfback declared eligible, a key lineman from last fall's frosh, then sudden maturity of a handful of players: Any of these can turn a mediocre team into a good one in a year's time.

Currently Columbia, Michigan, Kentucky, Mississippi, Princeton, Brown and Southern California are hitting the comeback trail after sorry seasons in 1937.

Radvilas Provides Balance

Columbia, licked five times last year, is a Grade A exhibit. The attack has added force and balance, mostly because Art Radvilas, an end last year, has been shifted to the wing back position.

He is no Grange but he gives the Lions balance. Columbia should field one of the east's best offenses against Army Saturday.

Although Purdue and Wisconsin are bidding for glory in the Big Ten, Michigan is the outstanding comebacker in that rugged sector. The "punt, pass and prayer" boys won four and lost four last year, tired Harry Kipke and hired Fritz Crisler, who had doctored Princeton's lagging fortunes.

Apparently he also has the medicine for Michigan. The Wolverines knocked over Michigan State, a tough customer in any league, and they should make it two straight against Chicago, Saturday.

Iowa, Wisconsin and Missouri are other definite comeback threats in the west with the Badgers granted the best chances of regaining the heights. Kentucky, considerably pushed about last season, meets Vanderbilt Saturday in a Southeastern conference game that offers the chance the Wildcats have been awaiting.

Mississippi, knocked down by six rivals, has done considerable comebacking so far trampling L. S. U. and Louisiana Tech. A soft one is ahead Saturday with Mississippi Teachers.

Brown came back as far as any last Saturday. The Bears knocked over mighty Harvard, fresh from its best season in years.

The coast's most perennial comebacker, Southern California, meets Ohio State in one of the day's major intersectional battles. Already beaten by Alabama, the Trojans have this chance to save national prestige and Howard Jones' coaching job.

MICHIGAN DRILLS FOR CHICAGO TILT

Crisler Moves To Prevent Team's Overconfidence

By The Associated Press.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 5 — Fritz Crisler got Michigan away to a flying start in his debut as the Wolverine football coach, but he is taking no chances—not even against Chicago's Maroons, long the doormat of the Big Ten.

Crisler wasn't around the conference last year when the Maroons had the Wolves soundly whipped until a furious comeback gave Michigan a 13 to 12 triumph.

Drill Is Unimpressive

But he was around yesterday when an unimpressive Michigan drill led him to warn his squad not to take the Maroons and their inexperienceerd line too lightly for the game Saturday. "They'll pin our ears back if you do," he s

Out on Chicago's midway, Coach Clark Shaughnessy's small squad went through a strenuous drill in preparation for their opening Big Ten contest.

At other Big Ten camps yesterday, Purdue worked for the Minnesota game behind locked gates. The Gophers were to do the same today and for the rest of the week. The regulars at Iowa ran over the Hawkeye freshmen for one quick touchdown and then were excused. At Wisconsin, which will meet the Hawkeyes this week, the Badgers stopped cold a freshman squad using Iowa plays.

Injuries Hamper Indiana

Indiana's running attack was reported somewhat disabled by injuries. The Hoosiers began polishing their aerial offense for Illinois. The Illini, meanwhile, looked good on offense but bad against Indiana plays employed by freshmen. Ohio State held a long defensive drill and worked on passes in preparation for Southern California. Northwestern, scheduled to meet Drake, stressed defensive play in a lengthy session.

Gridders To See Movie

The entire varsity squad and coaching staff of East Liverpool High school will be the guests of the Columbia theater management tonight to see the current motion picture "Touchdown Army" starring John Howard and Mary Carlisle.

Compulsory social security has existed in Germany for more than 40 years.

Salem To Pin Hopes On Husky Line And Fleet Backs Friday

Salem High gridders are knuckling under these days as Coach Carl F. Schroeder drills them for their first real test of the season with East Liverpool Friday night at Reilly stadium.

The Quakers demonstrated their ability in all departments of the game by taking Sebring to the tune of 39-0 and Ravenna 25-0 in the only games they have played.

Veteran Stuart Wise and Bud Dean are the nucleus of a fast, deceptive backfield while Bill Schaeffer, a six-foot senior weighing 166 pounds, who has three years' experience to his credit, and Richard Beck, a 180-pound junior with one year of varsity experience, are the bulwark of a hard-hitting line.

Although not possessing the weight of last year's forward wall, the line this year is more powerful and aggressive. Melvin Wukotich, 160-pound sophomore, has shown real promise at center and probably will be in the starting lineup Friday night while his twin brother, Marvin, will fill the fullback berth.

The probable starting lineup for Salem will have Schaeffer at left end, Dick Beck at left tackle, Clarence Woerther at left guard, Melvin Wukotich at center, Mike Guappone at right guard, Joe Vender at right tackle, Dick Terry at right end, Dean at quarter, Mike Oana at right half, Wise at left half and Marvin Wukotich at full.

Coach Joe Morbito is taking no chances on scrimmage injuries keeping any of his varsity Potters on the bench at Salem.

The Akron West game last week left three regulars with painful bruises. Dick Bailey, right end, suffered a bad rib bruise that has not yet completely healed, and Tom Taylor, center, came out with a raw shin and cut a lip. Joe Yaeger is still limping with a bad ankle which may keep him from putting in full time Friday.

The entire squad rested Monday and no scrimmage is scheduled until today. In the light workout yesterday the team clicked on defensive line work but seemed confused in aerial tactics and ball handling.

The club lacks none of the enthusiasm, however, which it displayed in salting away the first three opponents and should be ready to play serious ball Friday.

Phillies Get Prize As Big League Clubs Choose 17 Players In Draft

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5. — The "new deal" that Philadelphia's futile Phillies hope to swing under their new manager, Dr. James T. (Doc) Prothro, was off to a fine start today with the acquisition of Merrill May, Newark third baseman and generally regarded as the "prize" of the big league draft meeting.

May has been one of the standouts of the "wonder team" of Newark Bears that has mowed down the rest of the International league for the last two seasons. Since the Cubs bought Jimmy Gleeson from the Bears some weeks ago, May has been the most talked of player, from a big league standpoint, in the International loop.

Batted .333 With Bears

And the Phillies, notably President Gerry Nugent, stepped right up and picked him first crack out of the box at the annual draft meetings last night. May batted a neat .333 with the Bears during the regular 1938 season and is still in the process of playing the Little World Series against Kansas City.

Altogether, 17 players were drafted from the minors by 10 of the 16 big league clubs. Only the pennant winners—the Cubs and New York Yankees—the Boston Bees, New York Giants, Cincinnati Reds and Cleveland Indians "passed" on every deal at the meeting.

Two well-liked veterans of the big leagues were brought back when the Washington Senators selected gallant Charley Gelbert, former St. Louis Cardinal infielder, from Toledo, and the Philadelphia Athletics picked Roy (Tarzan) Parmelee, former New York Giants, Chicago Cubs and St. Louis Cardinals pitcher, from Minneapolis.

Mack Selects Five

Parmelee was one of five picked by Connie Mack for the A's. The others were pitcher Bill Beckman, who won 20 games from Atlanta, Henry Pippen, 17-game winner for Sacramento of the Pacific coast league; Joe Gantenbein, Toronto third-sacker and Bill Nagel, infielder and outfielder from Baltimore.

Others selected were:

By Phillies—Legrant Scott, Indianapolis outfielder.

By Brooklyn—Hugh Casey, Memphis, pitcher, and Russ Evans, Jersey City hurler.

By St. Louis Cardinals—Jimmy Outlaw, Syracuse third baseman.

By Pittsburgh—Fern Bell, Louisville outfielder, and Jack Jeulich, Rochester third baseman.

By St. Louis Browns—Hal Spindell, Seattle catcher.

By Chicago White Sox—Art Herring, St. Paul pitcher.

By Detroit Tigers—James Lynn, Columbus pitcher.

By Boston Red Sox—Wayman Kerwsieck, Little Rock pitcher.

FORMER HIGH SCHOOL GRIDDERS WILL PLAY

A group of former East Liverpool and Wellsville High school football players are practicing at Columbian park under Coach Rudy Halpate preparatory to contests with amateur teams.

The team, to be known as the "Ex-Hi's will play on Sunday afternoons. An effort is being made to open the season a week from Sunday.

Local merchants and businessmen have donated $100 for uniforms.

The team will line up with Jack Savage and Bill Vocial, ends; Bayard Price and Regis Scharf, tackles; Bud Plant and Vern Blazer, guards; Gwilyn Jones, center; Wetzel, Copestick, Nelson and Shepherd, backs. George Vinovich and Jim McGeehan are available for reserve duty. Nelso and Shepherd are from Wellsville.

CHESTER GRID GAME MOVED UP TO FRIDAY

Mr. R. M. McFarlund, principal of Chester High school, announced today that the football game between Chester and New Cumberland, originally scheduled for Saturday afternoon, will be played Friday afternoon at 3:45 on the Chester gridiron.

The change was made to accommodate those who would prefer to listen to the world series baseball game to be broadcast Saturday.

Fugate Wins Club Shoot

David Fugate Tuesday night won the East Liverpool Rifle club's weekly shoot with a score of 198 of a possible 200. Herman Raber was second with 197, Clyde Rouch third with 192 and Herbert Stewart fourth with 188. The shoot was a two-position match, prone and kneeling.

BRINGING UP FATHER By George McManus

ISN'T IT JUST MARVELOUS? MY BROTHER DANNY WENT TO WORK TODAY--YOUR FATHER GOT HIM A JOB WITH A COLLECTING AGENCY DOWNTOWN-
DANNY GOING TO WORK-ITS A MIRACLE--
I ALWAYS KNEW HE WOULD AMOUNT TO SOMETHING IF HE GOT THE CHANCE-
WELL-MAGGIE-I'VE GOT BAD NEWS ABOUT DANNY--HE QUIT HIS JOB-
--QUIT-??? WHAT WAS THE MATTER? DIDN'T HE LIKE HIS BOSS?
OH-NO-THEY SENT HIM OUT TO COLLECT THREE BILLS-AND ONE WAS YOUR AUNT'S-THE SECOND ONE WAS YER MOTHER'S-AND THE THIRD ONE-HE OWED-------

TILLIE THE TOILER By Russ Westover

I WONDER IF WE'RE ON THE SAWMILL RIVER ROAD OR NOT?
IT'S SO DARK I WOULDN'T BE ABLE TO SEE A SIGN, IF WE DID COME TO ONE
WE'RE IN LUCK--SOUNDS LIKE SOMEBODY PUT-TIN' ON A TIRE--WE'LL ASK 'EM WHAT ROAD THIS IS OKAY, BOB--THEY MAY KNOW
BANG BANG
HELLO, THERE--COULD YOU TELL--
GOOD GRIEF! IT'S MAC--STEP ON IT, BOB
WHEN I STARTED ON THIS NEW AIR-PLANE IDEA YOU TOLD ME I'D NEVER GET ANYWHERE UNLESS I GOT TILLIE OUT OF MY MIND--NOW WHAT ARE YOU DOING?--COME ON, LET'S GET THIS TIRE ON OR YOU'LL NEVER GET ANYWHERE
ALL I WANT TO KNOW IS, HOW COME BOB'S TAKING HER OUT NOW?

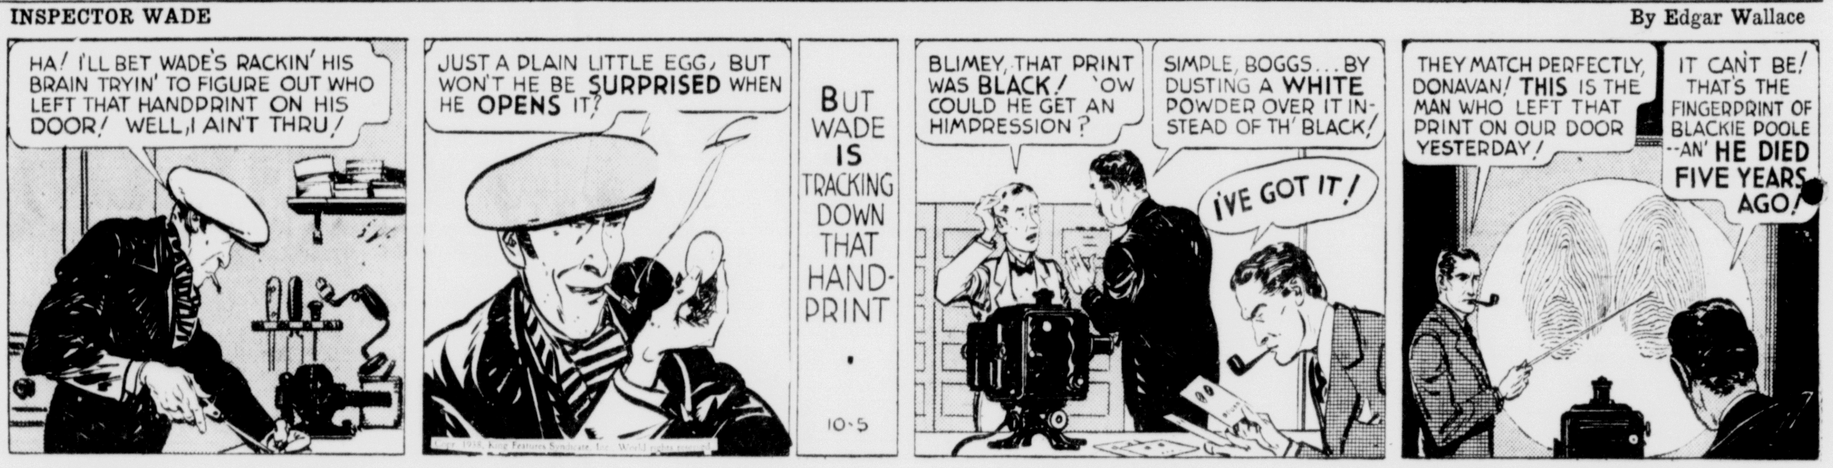
INSPECTOR WADE By Edgar Wallace



HA! I'LL BET WADE'S RACKIN' HIS BRAIN TRYIN' TO FIGURE OUT WHO LEFT THAT HANDPRINT ON HIS DOOR! WELL, I AIN'T THRU!
JUST A PLAIN LITTLE EGG, BUT WON'T HE BE SURPRISED WHEN HE OPENS IT?
BUT WADE IS TRACKING DOWN THAT HAND-PRINT
10-5
BLIMEY, THAT PRINT WAS BLACK! 'OW COULD HE GET AN HIMPRESSION?
SIMPLE, BOGGS... BY DUSTING A WHITE POWDER OVER IT IN-STEAD OF TH' BLACK!
I'VE GOT IT!
THEY MATCH PERFECTLY, DONAVAN! THIS IS THE MAN WHO LEFT THAT PRINT ON OUR DOOR YESTERDAY!
IT CAN'T BE! THAT'S THE FINGERPRINT OF BLACKIE POOLE --AN' HE DIED FIVE YEARS AGO!

TIM TYLER'S LUCK By Lyman Young

YOU BELIEVE THE IVORY THATCHER AND TOLOA WANT TO TRADE WITH US WAS STOLEN ORIGINALLY, SIR?
THAT PAIR IS THE ANSWER TO ALL THE RECENT THEFTS UPLANDS, TIM
....I SAW FANG, MY PANTHER PET, FOLLOWING ME, BUT I CHASED HIM AWAY--
THAT'S GOOD--HE WOULD CAUSE US NO END OF TROUBLE--
10-5
LYMAN YOUNG
BUT FANG HAS REFUSED TO OBEY HIS YOUNG MASTER--
HE LEAPS FROM THE BRUSH TO PLAY WITH HIS OLD FRIEND, OTEETO, AND THE ELEPHANT RUNS FORWARD TO GREET THE PANTHER

TOOTS AND CASPER By Jimmy Murphy

WOWIE! WHAT AN ASSORTMENT OF SNORES HE'S GOT! FIRST HE SPUTTERS LIKE A CAR ON ONE CYLINDER GOING UP A HILL--THEN IT'S A WHISTLE LIKE A BOMB DROPPING FROM A WAR PLANE!
Z-Z-Z... BRFZZZZ... UMFZZ-Z-Z- SPUTSZ-Z-Z-Z- Z-Z-Z-Z- UMFGA Z-Z..
NEXT COMES A COMBINATION SOUNDING LIKE STATIC ON A SHORT-WAVE SET AND A MOTORCYCLE BACK-FIRING!
Z-Z-Z-Z...
THEN HE ENDS UP WITH A SNORE THAT SOUNDS SO MUCH LIKE A NEBRASKA THUNDER STORM THAT I EXPECT A BOLT OF LIGHTNING TO FOLLOW IT!
Z-Z-Z..
WILL DAYBREAK NEVER COME? THE TIME IS PASSING SO SLOW I THINK THE CLOCK IS RUNNING BACKWARDS!
Z-Z-Z..
WAKE UP, DOGGONE YA! WHY SHOULD YOU SLEEP IF I CAN'T?

LITTLE ANNIE ROONEY By Darrell McClure

YES, INDEED, MISS--HE'S AN EVEN-TEMPERED, WELL-BEHAVED LITTLE ANIMAL AND VERY INTELLIGENT--I'VE BEEN WONDERING ABOUT HIS PEDIGREE--HIS BREEDING--
BAGGAGE COMPT
OH, ZERO AIN'T GOT NO PEDIGREE, OR BREEDING OR ANY OF THAT SNOOTY STUFF RICH DOGS HAS--I DON'T KNOW HIS NATIONALITY--I GUESS HE'S JUST AN ORPHAN LIKE I AM--
BUT I'LL BETCHA IF HE HAD ANY PEDIGREE--IT WOULD BE GRAND, 'CAUSE HE'S A SWELL LITTLE POOCH AN' KIN DO TRICKS --ME AN' ZERO IS CHUMS!!
DARRELL McCLURE
IT'S EASY TO SEE THAT, MISS--IF A DOG REALLY LIKES YOU--HE HAS HIS WAY OF SHOWING IT MORE PLAINLY THAN ALL THE TALK IN THE WORLD
